

The GLEN-NOR ANNUAL Staff is happy to introduce Glen and Nora, composites of every pupil in this twin-borough high school. These twins will escort readers through the 1941 GLEN-NOR ANNUAL.

GLEN-NOR ANNUAL

A YEAR BOOK BY, FOR, AND OF
THE GLEN-NOR STUDENT BODY

GLENOLDEN, PENNSYLVANIA

The Annual Staff

S A L U T E S

A brisk March wind snaps around Glen and Nora as they walk past the athletic field on South Avenue.

"Look!" exclaims Nora. "There are Mr. and Mrs. Bracken with Terry and Earl, Jr. How does Mr. Bracken get time to relax? I never knew a man who could accomplish as much as he does."

"Nor I," agrees Glen. "Besides reading the latest magazines, he is up to the second on world events; he supervises the Social Studies Department; he sponsors the Student Council; and finds time to help the student who gets into a scrape."

"He has a lot of tact and patience," muses Nora. "He always has a good word for everyone."

"When it comes to intelligence, personality, and helpfulness, he is just about my idea of a man," confesses Glen.

"That's what the Staff thought when it voted to dedicate the 1941 ANNUAL to Mr. Bracken," concluded Nora.

"Why has the Staff made this ANNUAL?" inquires Nora with her usual curiosity. "I should think that it would take a lot of time and ingenuity."

"It does," agrees Glen, "but it's worth the struggle. First, it is a pictorial record of the school year, so it features the daily life of the pupils as well as their worthwhile achievements. Then, it is a memory book which preserves for all time a year of school life. Besides this, the ANNUAL gives a variety of splendid experiences to pupils interested in writing, art, photography, and business."

"Thanks for the information," Nora returns. "I can't wait to see what the Staff has done with the year 1940-1941. Let's get going!"

I O N , P L E A S E

"The ANNUAL Staff has planned a route for this trip," remarks Glen, taking a memorandum book from his pocket.

"Where do we go first?" asks Nora excitedly.

"I might as well tell you the whole itinerary, so that you'll have a general idea of what you are going to see." Glen begins to read:

ADMINISTRATION.....PAGES 8-15

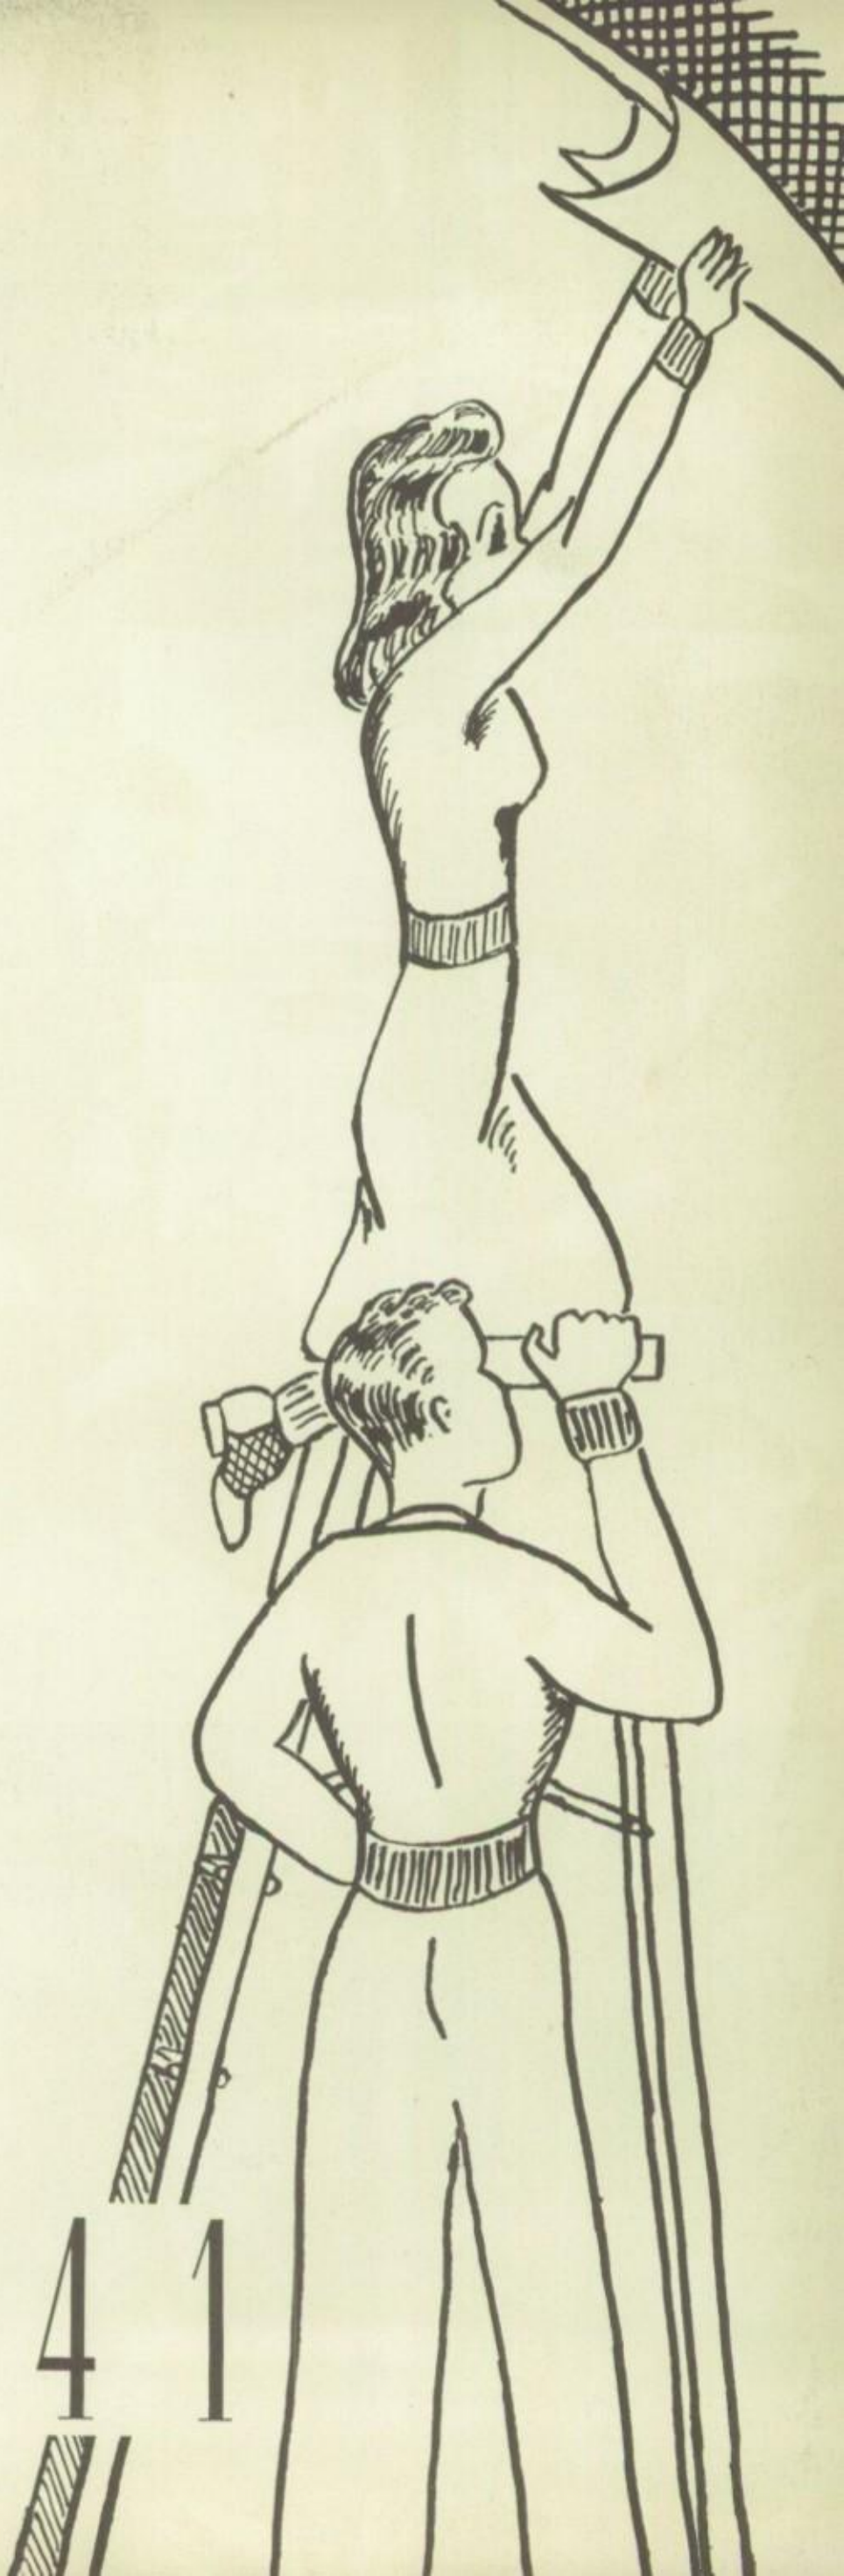

CLASSES.....PAGES 16-51

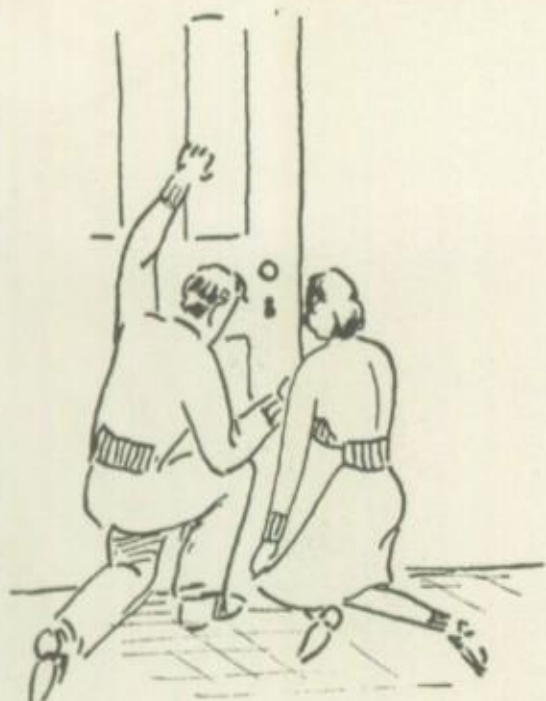

ACTIVITIES.....PAGES 52-67

SPORTS.....PAGES 68-88

"Let me turn the pages!" cries Nora, as she scampers up the step-ladder.

"Glen, why is the light on in the library? It's almost 10:30." Nora consults her watch under a Sylvan Avenue light.

"Isn't this the night the school board meets? Let's go up and have a peek," Glen boldly suggests.

"Be careful! They mustn't hear us, for we really don't want to disturb them—they have such a lot of business to transact," Nora carefully admonishes.

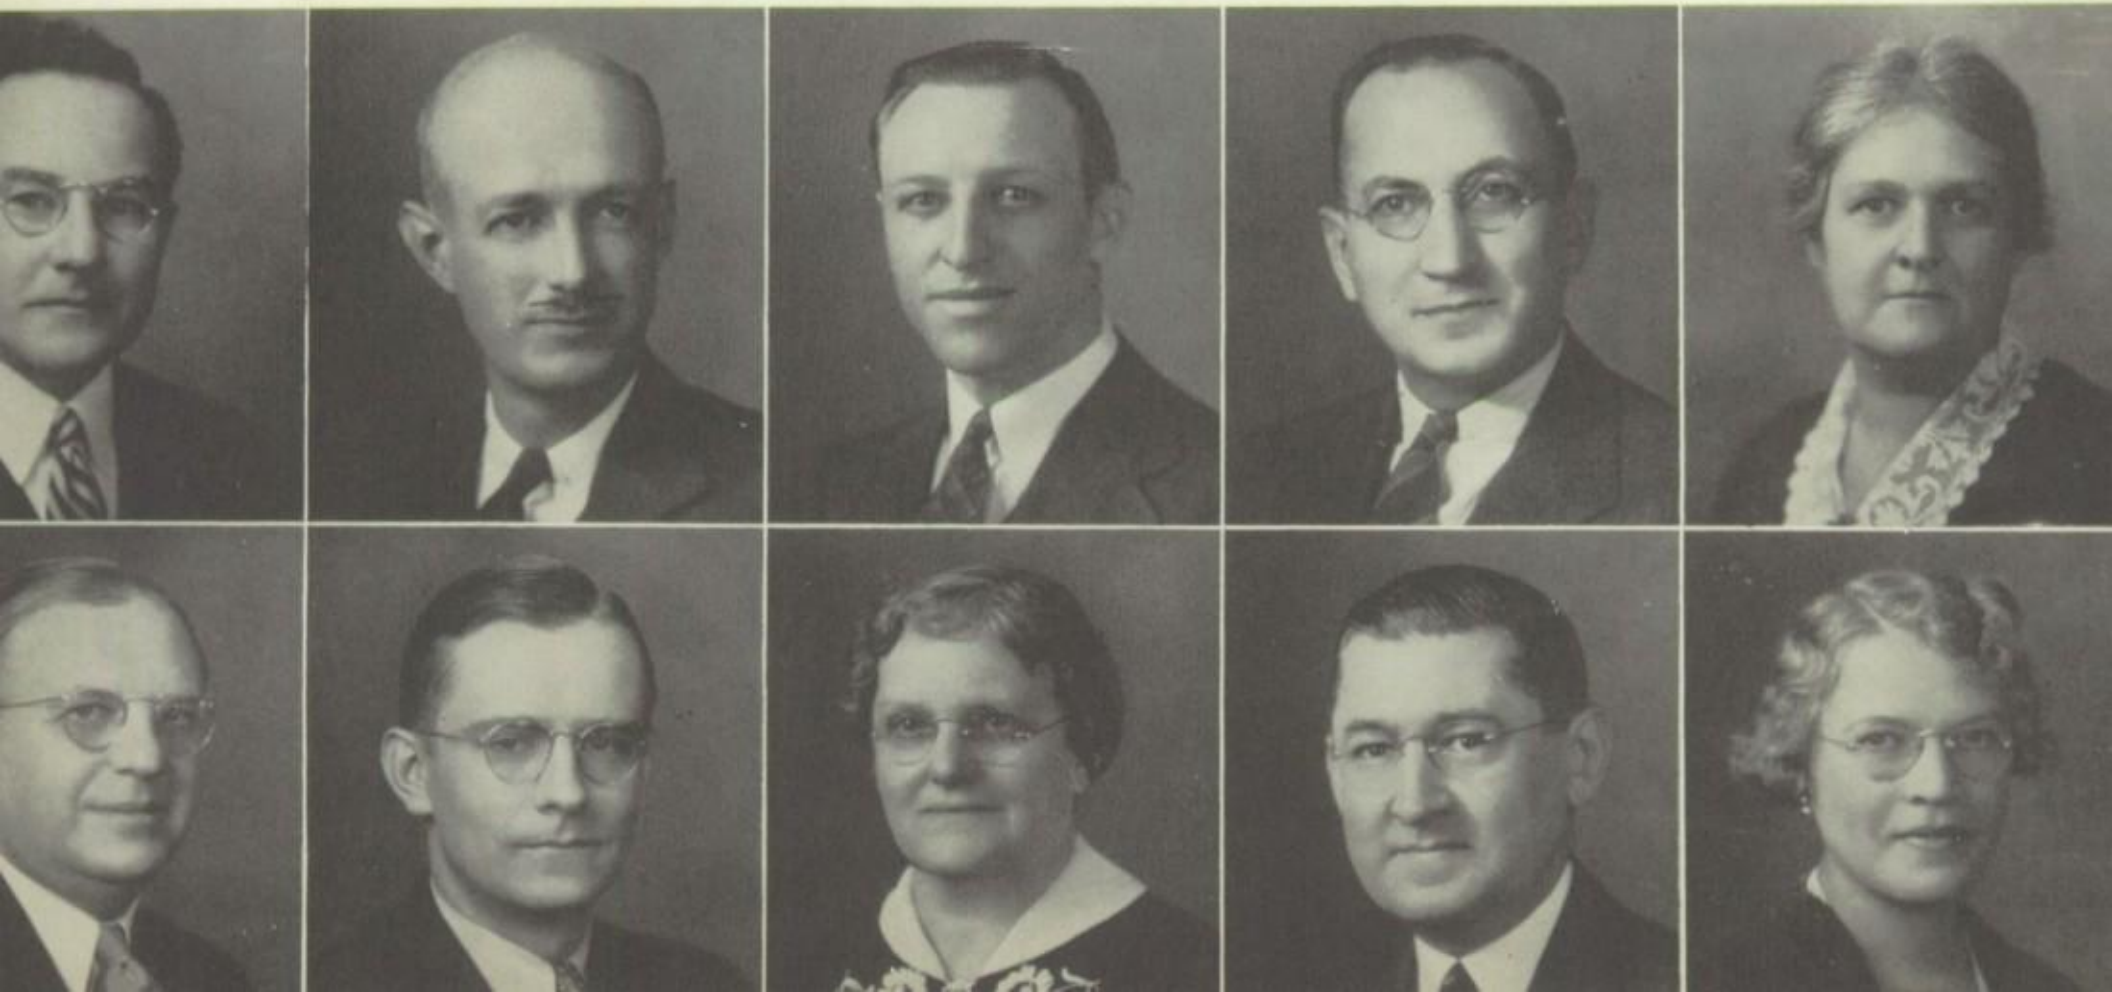

"Why aren't keyholes made a little larger? Get down on your knees—that's better—Can't you see them now?" whispers Glen.

"Yes, they must be discussing something important," Nora observes. "They look serious."

"Everything they do is important—they are really the generator in this plant—for they can start and stop everything. They certainly do a lot of work that nobody knows about. Why just the other day——"

"Quick! They've heard us!" Nora pants after Glen as they race down the school steps.

J. MILTON ROSSING

"Oh, there's Mr. Rossing, our principal! He should be pointed out to every reader who wanders through this book." Nora stops as Glen interrupts,

"I'll say so! Glen-Nor has really progressed in the eleven years he's been here."

"I like him especially because he's so interested in all the school activities," Nora continues. "He likes to keep up with what the clubs and classes and sports teams are doing."

Glen nods acquiescence. "He's not just a figure at a desk, but he's a real person who takes an interest in the same phases of school life that we do."

"That's his outstanding trait," agrees Nora.

"Do you know," inquires Glen, "that every teacher who comes to Glen-Nor must have at least two years of teaching experience?"

"No, I didn't know that," confesses Nora. "Most students know very little about the faculty."

"Some think that they know more than the faculty, but I can prove that they don't," Glen leafs through his statistics. "Every teacher has a Bachelor's degree, and twenty-seven out of the thirty-six have Master's degrees."

Reading over Glen's shoulder, Nora explains, "Thirteen have a Master of Arts degree; eleven, a Master of Science; and five, a Master of Education!"

"There," shouts Glen triumphantly, "can you now say that you know more than the teacher?"

"Let me have another look at that page," begs Nora. "Most of the teachers are qualified to teach several subjects."

"Yes," Glen continues. "The average teachers is qualified to give instruction in three subjects, while eight have state certifications for five or more subjects."

"Think of all the subdivisions under commercial studies and the sciences," Nora sighs.

"Listen to this! Eighteen teachers are qualified to teach social studies; thirteen, the various science courses; eleven, mathematics; six, German; eight, Latin; six, French; and three may serve as high school principals!"

"Glen-Nor's faculty has taught a total of 408 years," observes Nora impressively. "Do you realize that 250 of those years have been spent right here?"

DEMOCRACY

President Joseph Burke and Student Council

STUDENT COUNCIL

Row 1: D. Manning, K. Forbes, J. Leech, R. J. Brooks, A. McVickar, H. Magera, L. Sipple, F. Lummis, J. Hawley, U. Mallgrave, J. Burke.
 Row 2: J. Bryfogle, J. Milne, E. Shadel, B. Hoguet, K. White, M. Fitzpatrick, J. Wenkenbach, C. Abrams.
 Row 3: B. Turner, B. Holmes, J. Weisen, P. Collins, R. Shaw, R. Wagner, D. Reddington, M. Ebright, B. Bamforth, A. Richards, C. Kramer, S. Donahue.

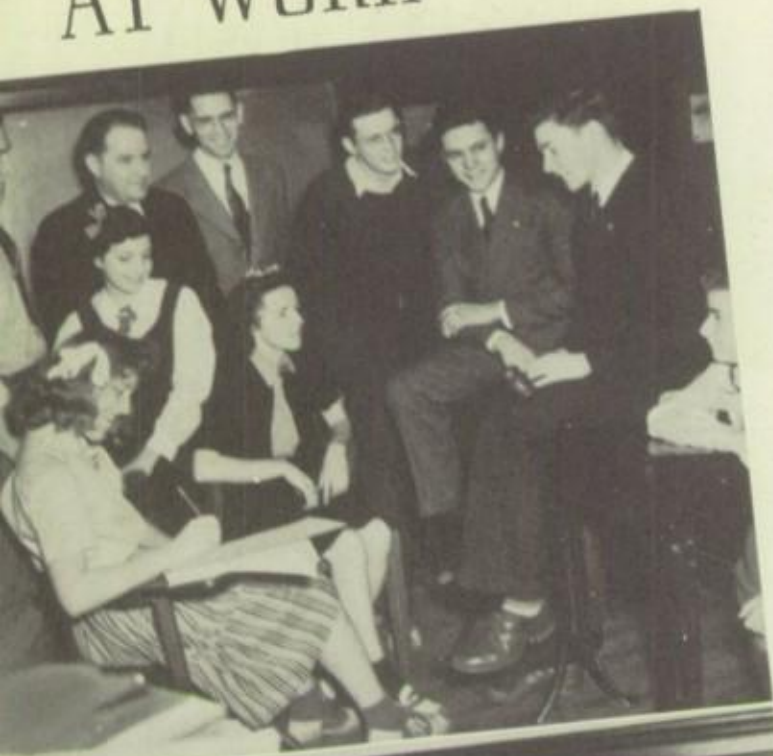

"Now we want to talk about the democratic way in which our pupils learn the practices of self-government," explain Glen and Nora as they stop at Room 17, the home of the STUDENT COUNCIL.

"All members are elected by their homerooms which have proportionate representation by grades," begins Glen. "Election to Student Council is a great honor which carries with it many responsibilities and obligations."

"The work is divided though," interrupts Nora. "There are committees for handling traffic, for maintaining law and order, for returning lost property to the owners, for keeping records of the Point System—even for buying new dance records."

AT WORK

"About those records," Glen interrupts. "Last year the Council bought a record player for dances. This year it has bought two more amplifiers, and now all four will soon be permanently installed in the gym."

"This is just one of the problems the Council has solved," Nora boasts. "Give us time and we can solve our own problems with the cooperation of our sponsors, faculty, and principal."

"That's democracy at work. Let's go on," suggests Glen.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Row 2: M. Ebright, J. Wenkenbach, Miss Deane, E. Chesnutt, R. Miller.

LOST AND FOUND COMMITTEE

Row 1: J. Casey, C. Ward, B. Turner, D. Richards, J. Weisen, R. Holmes, R. Alloway.
Row 2: Mr. Bracken, S. Donahue, J. Burke, R. Shaw.

CONSTITUTION COMMITTEE

Row 1: J. Wenkenbach, J. Leech, Mr. Clark, C. Abrams, J. Hoguet, K. Forbes.
Row 2: D. Reddington, H. Magera, J. Brytogle, C. Cary, M. Fitzpatrick, C. Kramer.

"The student body will be presented individually," Nora announces. "The senior high school will be introduced by class organizations; and the junior high school, by homerooms."

"Because the pupils are being trained in citizenship, each class has made its own constitution by which it has voted to abide," explains Glen. "The junior high homerooms prepare for this step by giving the pupils practice in self-government, too. Special care has been taken to point out the officers, for they are the elected representatives of the various groups."

"No one can get through our school without being made conscious of his rights and responsibilities as a citizen," Nora states proudly.

Love from
Walt

ROBERT ACKROYD ALLOWAY

The nickname "Rookie" came to this boy out of the dust of the baseball diamond where his hits are as frequent as his words are rare. Between classes, his motto is "They shall not pass"—as he directs the surge of Glen-Nor traffic through one-way zones.

WALTER ANDERSON

The front row in assembly concentrates on "Andy's" nimble fingers, for this veteran violinist has been the concertmaster for three years. In his junior and senior years he graduated from the pit to the stage. His football prowess has been acclaimed by the Gophers.

NORMA LYDA ATHERHOLT

"How to win friends and influence people" is Norma's special secret. Classmates strongly suspect that her warm smile is responsible. A weakness for working at hard jobs has won her the honor of being secretary for Room 16 and assistant circulation manager of the Annual.

WALTER BARLOW

Although he is better known for his feats on the gridiron, "Walt" also plays a hard game of basketball. His sphinx-like mask, which he adopts for school purposes, is cast aside by nightfall when he becomes a gay caballero. When not occupied by being the life of the party, he Manors.

AGNES JEANNETTE BARRY

The library is the most exciting room in school to this adventurer, who flies to new worlds on the magic carpet of books. Perhaps that is the reason for "Aggie's" being such an incurable optimist. Why worry about trifles when one can brush them aside by picking up a new book?

LEFT TO RIGHT (Standing): W. Anderson, B. Simpson, B. Munson, B. Hines, G. Lake, C. Brown, B. Pritchett, E. Oakes, D. Simon, D. Thomas, B. Woodruff.
SITTING: N. Hendricks.

HELEN DOROTHY BATES

Glen-Nor's future Clara Barton has been preparing for her nursing career by enduring four tedious years of Latin, for which she has become famous. Cicero has been made to move over and make way for King Baseball in the competition for absorbing Helen's more carefree moments.

MARIE BENDER

When music is in the air, Marie drops her classroom quietness and swings into action. Like a bit of thistledown, she has danced miles around the gym floor. A career girl, she has already climbed a few rungs by teaching and by filling professional engagements.

RALPH KENNETH BOEKENKAMP

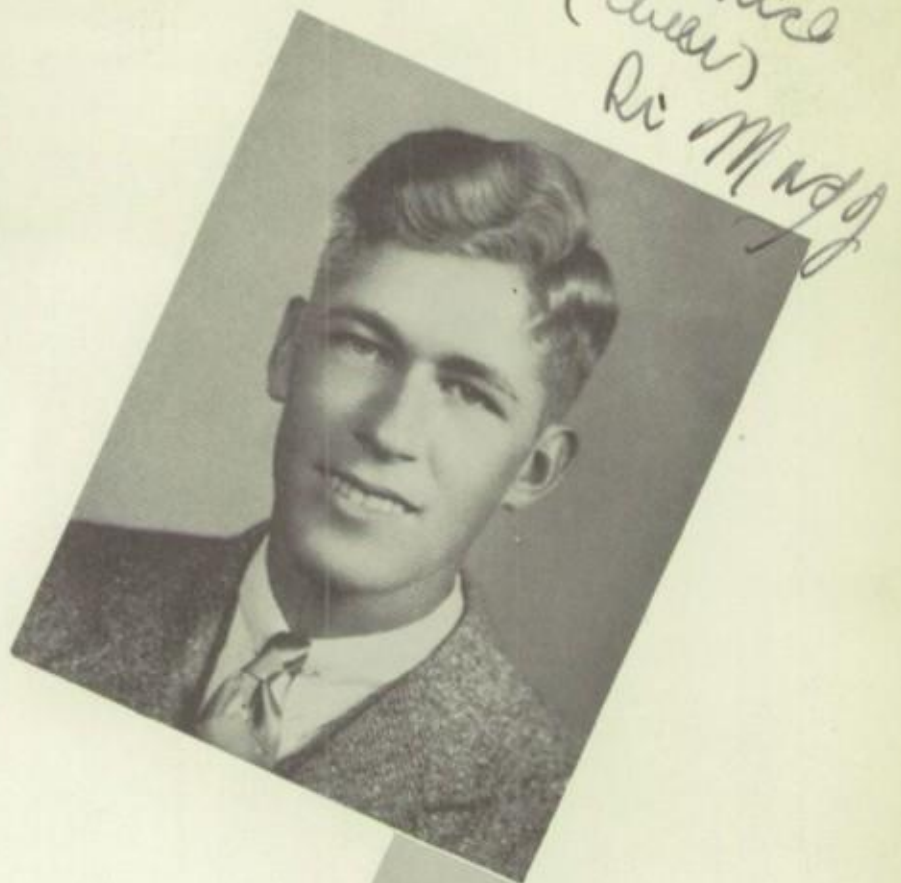

"Bogey's" fine sense of rhythm may be explained by his membership in the Senior Chorus, or by the jallopy that shakes him places. His sense of humor may be explained by his height, which helps him to see the world in its true perspective.

GERALDINE KATHERINE BONAWITZ

A little blonde will-o'-the-wisp, "Gerry" has floated in and out of classes leaving a ripple of laughter behind her. The attendance office and make-up periods have kept her stepping; however, school has not worried her too much, for her main interest has been distinctly extra-curricular!

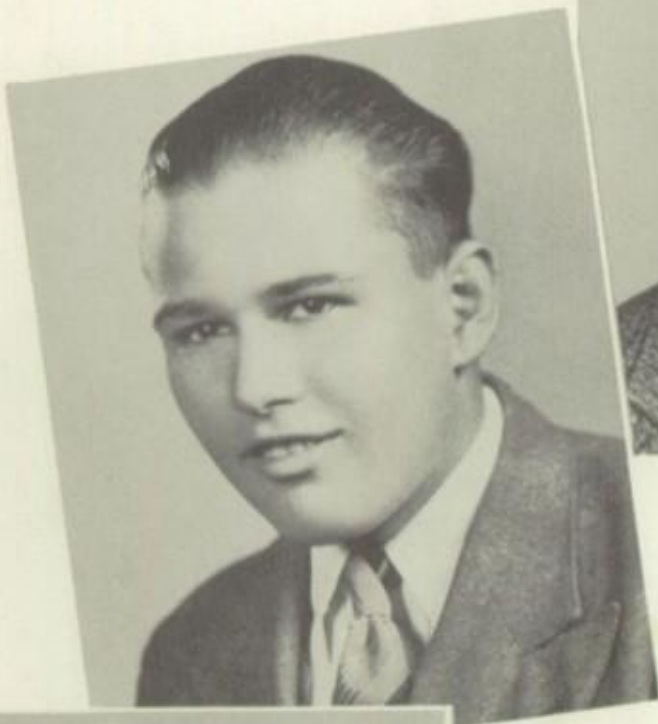

HENRY ALANSON BRAINERD

A physics problem holds no terror for "Sam," who has gone through the sciences with the greatest of ease. Outside the laboratory, he has captured the ping-pong championship of the Mold A. C. His weekly housekeeping reports in Room 16 have become argumentative classics.

J. Norris, Mr. Bamberger, R. Prettyman, B. Simpson, E. Oakes

*In a sweet

Bob Brangan*

Late of lunch to Boy. Ethel

ROBERT THOMAS BRANGAN

"Late to bed and early to rise" is "Bob's" motto when he plods out to his morning paper route. His amorous nature drags him to all of the dances. In the spring the track team calls for his managerial talents, leaving him little time for his pursuit of happiness.

JOHN DAVID BROOKS

Whether on the gridiron or the dance floor, "Chopsticks" can be identified by his characteristically powerful movements. In the chemistry lab, he makes a bee-line for the nearest explosive elements. His love for brilliance is typified by his slam-bang tennis game

RUTH JANE BROOKS

The skeleton key to the mystery of the Point System Committee has been held by Ruth Jane for two years. Reading is responsible for a wealth of ideas which help her out of tight spots. Practicing short-hand by taking down words to popular songs is an original exercise

ETHEL VIRGINIA BROOMALL

The 1941 record for silence is held by Ethel, who breaks it once in a while with a giggle. She picks up speed when her schedule takes her to Room 18. In the library she whizzes into action by loading up with the best books. Manufacturing committee reports is a gift!

CLIFFORD WILLIAM BROWN

The reputation for getting work done has always gotten "Knute" into hot water. The "Ghost Train" over, he began the great Annual headache, the senior write-ups. Still he has found time to play his trumpet, attend all sports contests, and wear down his tennis opponents.

P. Marra, C. Brown, G. Walker

*Plenty of sweat to ride man!
Knute*

DOROTHY HORTENSE BRYFOGLE

An enticing ripple of laughter is "Dot's" greatest asset. Playing the piano and traipsing to the cinema lighten homework chores. Rumor has it that her gray Pontiac was parked outside Shibe Park so often last summer that the police department reserved a permanent parking space for her.

CHARLES HENRY BUNTY

Undefeated—untied—unscored on—"Charlie" had a lot to do with making those words the cherished memory of football fans. Off the gridiron he finds relaxation over the mechanical drawing board. His witty wisecracks have pepped up many a lunch period that was headed for the social rocks.

JOSEPH LEO BURKE

The Chief Justice of Glen-Nor. "Joe" is president of the Student Council. "The news must go through" is his slogan, while he attends to his Bulletin route. Every Sunday afternoon he streaks to the plains of Sharpe and Dohme with his model gas bird, for he is air-minded!

WILLIAM CARL CALLAND

"Bill's" bachelorhood will be in a very precarious state when it is discovered that he has been an expert member of the housekeeping committee for years. Keeping his equilibrium has never been a problem, for he defies the laws of gravity on his favorite skating rink.

CHARLES JAMES CARY

Whenever there's an important sports gathering, "Charlie" is sure to be among those present, for he is one of Glen-Nor's most vocal fans. He unravels traffic snarls with the same force. Here is one boy who never trembles when it comes to taking a report card home.

C. Mendenhall, J. Norris

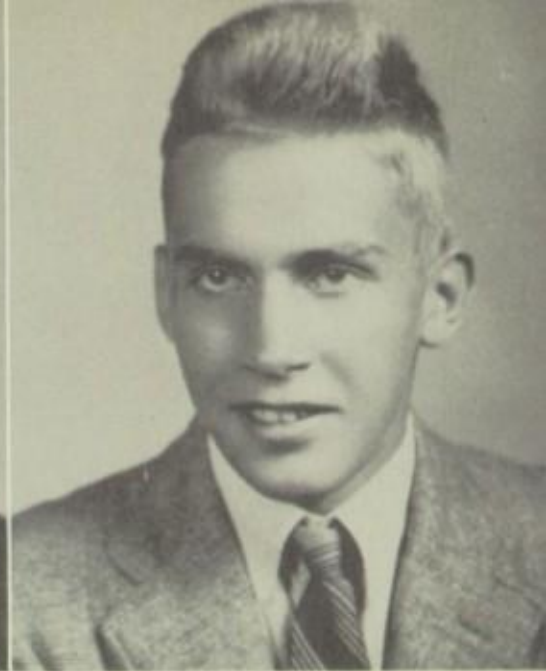

*lots of luck

*So the

*a great guy

Dr. Magg*

ROBERT GEORGE CASSEL

A self-appointed comedian, "Cokie" has kept many a class awake. An intense campaign of reading has made him a savant of historical facts and dates. In the cafeteria "Cokie" turns musical and conducts the Lunch Table Chorus in their rendition of "Happy Birthday."

JOSEPH RICHARD CHIAROLANZA

The title of Glen-Nor's most ardent baseball fan goes to Joe. The New York Yankees and their star, Joe Di Maggio, are the chief topics of his conversation. An enthusiastic basketball follower, he likes to confound his opponents with his startling pivot shots.

VIRGINIA CHIAROLANZA

Because her flying fingers usually come in with the winners in the Typing Club's weekly races, "Ginny" has become first-aid to suffering teachers. No quarantine has been able to stop her contagious giggle in law class—even the teacher has occasionally caught it!

FLORENCE ORA DAVEY

Dancing, ivory tickling, and reading rate high with fun-loving Florence. Swing music is also tops, but she has sung classical music in the Glee Club for four years. During the football season, selling candy kept her active, but since then homework and dances have occupied most of her time.

HELEN LOUISE DECKER

Here is one girl who can look pretty even when she is screeching at the top of her lungs. As captain of the cheerleaders, she has successfully demonstrated that ability. Her skill in sports has been proved during hockey and basketball seasons. Jitterbugging keeps her in trim.

LEFT TO RIGHT: H. Wilev H. Decker, R. Montgomery, D. Simon, Mr. Bracken.

*Best everything of a sweet
fellow & neighbor
Annie*
I can't be original, can I?

FRANCES BLANCHE DONNELLY

Old Man Trouble has always passed up "Fran," because her merry Irish eyes have shown him plainly that he would be wasting his time to stop. Letting the rest of the world bustle by, "Fran" prefers to wait until it needs her helping hand—then she joins the rush.

MARY ANN EVANS

Captaining her hockey team through an undefeated season climaxed "Annie's" sports career. The presidency of the Girl Reserves kept her on her toes, but she had enough energy left to play basketball, sing in the Chorus, and record minutes for Room 17. Pep plus!

EDYTHE MARGARET EVERMAN

This high-stepping majorette has often led the Glen-Nor Band over victorious battlegrounds. Forgetting the gridiron, she turns completely feminine when she sees a sewing machine. The knowledge of line and color learned in the art room is translated into her wardrobe.

JOHN DANIEL FAHEY

"Irish" John is a newcomer from Boston, Mass., but he has wasted little time in going out for football and popularity. His carefree manner, and "Bean City" accent have made him soar. His antics in the classroom have made the teachers grow gray.

KENNETH BROOKS FORBES

The guardianship of all Glen-Nor athletic equipment has been entrusted to "Ken." His school activities have been divided between the Hi-Y and the Student Council, while basketball has utilized his leisure—however, he always finds time for an argument.

LEFT TO RIGHT: B. Woodruff, D. Rex, B. Simpson

*From one Ken to another
lots of luck
to a swell fellow
Ken*

JOHN GILLESPIE III

John's career as the intellectual mainstay of the class took a journalistic turn when he was appointed editor-in-chief of the Annual. High flying in his hobbies, he has been a student of bird lore. Three years on the chess team have taught him to look before he leaps.

MARGARET HAMILTON GORMAN

Quiet as a mouse, "Peggy" slips in and out of classes. She will make the perfect secretary, for she sees all and says nothing. Office machines fascinate her, and she will be completely happy when she can operate them all.

MARTHA EMMA GREEN

"Better late than never" is Martha's firm belief—although there is the item of getting excuses in on time! Her famous grin belies the story about Titians—her idea is not to worry too much. Typing Club and the Senior Chorus have kept her busy—but not too busy to sell tickets.

JOHN ALVIN GRIMSHAW

Speed seems to be "Jack's" theme song, when his long legs flash down the cinder path. No tempo gets the best of him in Band practice. His gas models are the envy of his air-minded friends; however, there is nothing like the family car for speeding him to the nearest dance.

SHIRLEY ASENITH GRIMSHAW

Dull classes shower sparks when "Squeaky's" devastating inspirations burst forth. Besides throwing out her life-line of humor, she has done her share of work. She is one of the founders of the Junior Messenger, and she has toted her violin to orchestra practice for five years.

F. Lummis, B. Munson, F. Hazzard, J. Pauly, J. Gillespie, A. Mitchell

LOUISE MARIE GRUENER

Alibis can't get past "Lou," whose job in the attendance office has brought her up to date on the latest excuse. Her experience in keeping office secrets will make her the perfect secretary, since she already possesses the other qualifications: sense, skill, and looks!

MARGARET MARY GUTBERLET

The "baby of the class" is everyone's favorite at dances. Life is more than a song and dance to "Peggy," who can turn out work with the best of them. Her efficient fingers easily dispose of typing, and her minutes of Room 18's big business never miss a trick.

ALYCE MARIE HAGIST

The hockey hall of fame claims Alice, whose defensive work helped bring success to Glen-Nor. Supporting the football team as a cheerleader, Alyce showed her acrobatic skill on the gridiron. The sewing room is her domain, for there she goes domestic.

CHARLES LEE HARMON

Starring is a habit with "Charlie" on the gridiron, on the basketball court, and on the diamond. His ability and popularity have made him the captain of the perfect pigskin team and the president of the A.A. This sportsman chooses to play a quiet role.

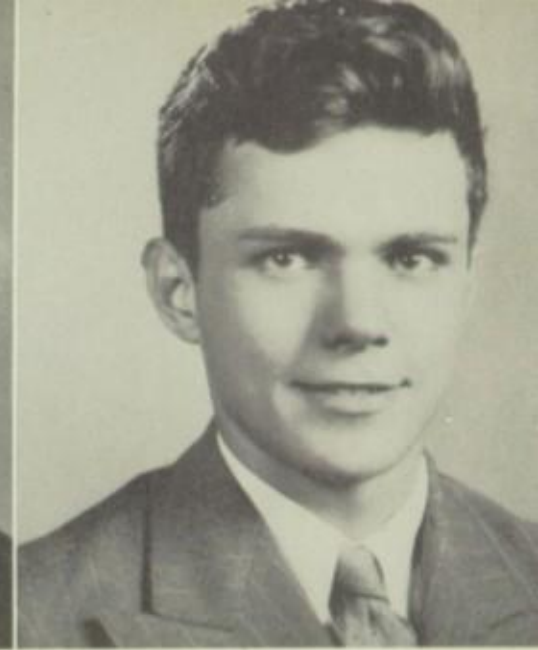

ANNE ELIZABETH HARRIS

Collingdale's loss has been Glen-Nor's gain. If it is true that absence makes the heart grow fonder, Anne has earned a warm place in the heart of '41. Her record for absence keeps her perpetually between the twin fires of excuse blanks and make-up work after school.

D., Thomas, Miss Robinson, F. Donnelly, B. Munson, B. Pritchett

JOHN FREEMAN HAWLEY

Up with the sun, "Jack" hikes to his traps. Then he comes to school to snare the grades and good will which have landed him in the National Honor Society and the Student Council. By night he convoys patrons to their seats through the Manor blackout.

FRANCES ELIZABETH HAZZARD

"Frannie's" gay wisecracks have been the silver lining to many a classroom cloud. In P.O.D. her short wave messages across the room have met with interference which was not static. Learning to drive her Chevvy has been the year's greatest achievement to date, but wait till 1942!

CHARLES HEBDEN HEACOCK

His famous grin has gotten "Straw" out of more tight places than it ever got him into. Behind a local soda fountain he concocts super-duper sodas. 'Tis slandered around town that "Straw" fed his soda to the cow that jumped over the moon. Anyway, he's going to be a florist!

JAMES VINCENT HEARNE

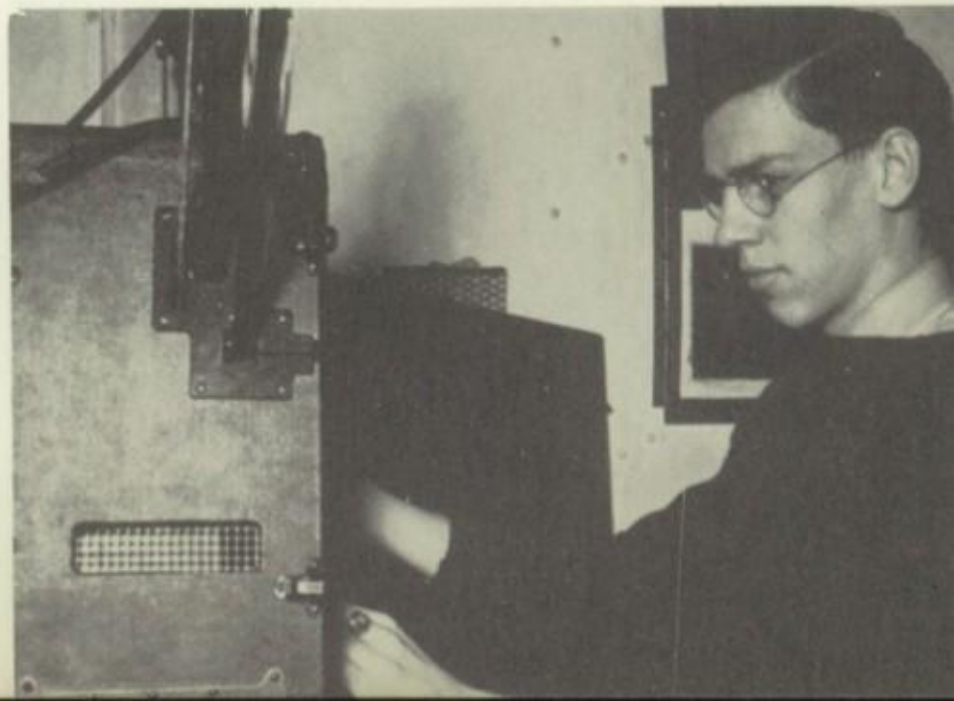

Although "Jim" is one of the quietest members of the Senior Class, a grin usually covers his face. One of the hardest N. Y. A. workers in school, he works so quietly and efficiently that no one knows he has even done any work. He also works the same way at his lessons.

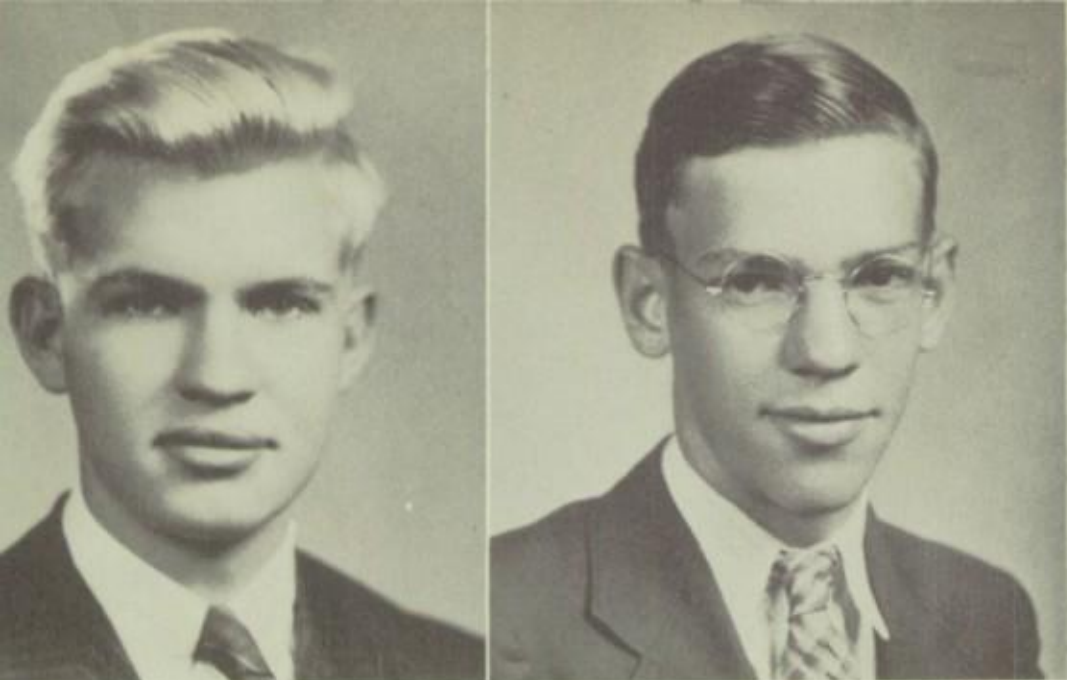

ANN MORLEY HENDRICKS

Whether cheerleading on the gridiron, radiating charm over the footlights, or accompanying the orchestra, "Nancy" is always found in a leading role. All her homework is done with a crooning radio as inspiration. Her dreams drift down to her second home, the sunny South.

B. Hess

CHARLES WILLIAM HENNEL

The circulation of the Evening Ledger throughout Norwood is dependent on "Chad's" management. Every afternoon he basks behind his foot-scarred desk fulfilling his important executive tasks. To rest his weary brain, he divides his spare time between dancing and bowling.

WILLIAM MILTON HESS

"The little man who's always there" would be "Willie's" title if he were several inches shorter. An indispensable part of the Visual Ed Department, he has picked up a liberal education through films. His popularity soars at dances, for he works the amplifier.

GEORGE STEVE HILLIARD

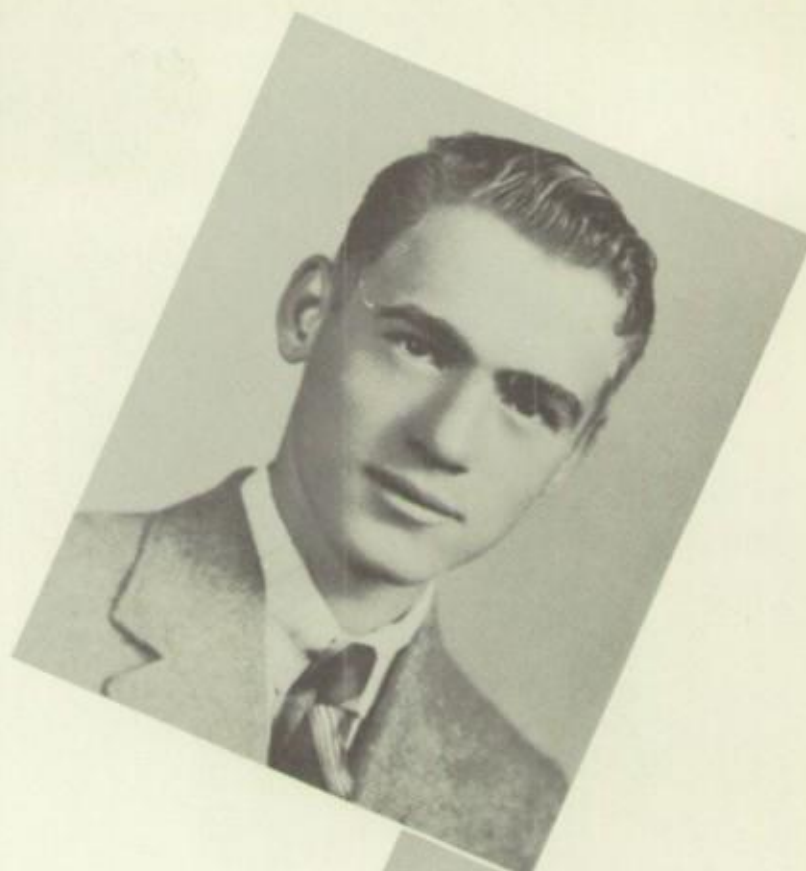

The honor of managing Glen-Nor's greatest football team to a perfect season goes to "Shadow." Locker room jokes were just part of the day's work and both were taken with a grin. During baseball season he plays second base for any team that needs him.

WILLIAM HENRY HINES

Courses in fun have supplemented "Wilbur's" education, which has been a most enjoyable affair. His work as snapshot editor had its moments—on days when bell signals had to be rung. His secret ambition revolves around music. Look for him at Torelli's or at the Manor Parking lot.

MARGARET MARY HITE

Although "Margie" may occasionally get mixed up in her destination at class, she never has any trouble finding her way to the cafeteria at lunch time. Dear to her heart also are the periods devoted to the Bridge Club and Senior Chorus. In fact she has a grand time!

D. McCuen, R. Whewell, U. Mallgrave

CARYL MARIE HOLSTROM

The manager of the senior exchequer has had many headaches, but no complaints. Her portrayal of the Swedish maid, Hilda, in the junior play was so realistic that she could hardly live it down. Her role in the senior play was to keep the cast straight—she was the prompter!

NANCY MARGARET KENNEDY

Nancy's hide-out after school is Room 18. At the second typewriter in the second row she proves that she is second to none in her ambition to get ahead in typing. Her lighter moments in P.O.D. have earned her many an outburst of laughter from her grateful classmates.

GEORGE HERBERT KEOWN

This tall and soft-spoken immigrant from Virginia soon won a place for himself at Glen-Nor. Although a wizard at his studies, "Herbie" has found time to pilot his volley ball team to victory in the intramural wars, and to learn mechanics in the Auto-Mechanics Club.

JOHN HERMAN KUGLER

Putting a block on a shifty safety man is no cinch, but John did it so often that he made it look easy. With the shift of the seasons John is metamorphosed into an ace high jumper. When he is away from the athletic field, he tinkers with the family car, or puts up his new pennants.

GORDON PARKER LAKE

This gargantuan shotputter is also a member of the Gopher All-Stars, the only gridiron conquerors of the Mold A. C. Nor does he neglect the more subtle arts; his cartoons have quite a following and his saxophone livens up the orchestra. The Annual stakes out a claim on him.

*Dear Bob,
Plenty of luck success to a good guy and

Gordon*

G. Walker, P. Gutberlet, N. Hendricks

HOWARD JOHNSON LEECH

Physics is his main interest, but "Bill" manages to find time for everything from Thrift Bank to Hi-Y. As his pet hobby is photography, he may be found anywhere from roof tops to good old terra-firma trying to get that perfect shot. The dark room is his retreat from too much school.

JOHN GRAYDON LEECH

A natural when it comes to handling money. "Jack" plies his talents as treasurer of Hi-Y. The world will lose a great policeman when he enters the engineering field, for he not only directs traffic with a dexterous hand, but he makes friends while doing it!

HAROLD RODMAN LESLIE

When this erstwhile soda jerker isn't mixing up delectable concoctions, he is tinkering with his father's car or designing a model of an army dreadnaught. Silent as a tomb in class, he contributes his share of the noise when school's out, so he comes into his own at 3 p. m.

FRANCES LILLIAN LUMMIS

Quick on the uptake, "Frannie" manufactures the kind of repartee that is quoted. She has proved to be quick in other ways, too. While waiting for the clock's hand to point to ten, she has bravely met the hazards of driving up and down Elmwood Avenue!

ROBERT G. MacKENDRICK, JR.

Taking his art lightly, "Bob" has used it mainly to extract laughs from his admiring classmates. "Magoon's" football skill has landed him a berth with the famous Mold A. C. team. Life is just one round of serving papers, playing records, and wearing down dance floors.

LEFT TO RIGHT: H. Decker, A. Stegmuller, A. Evans, P. Gutberlet, R. J. Brooks, N. Kennedy, F. Siess.

Good luck

Yvonne

URSULA ELIZABETH MALLGRAVE

Nothing gets past the "Kid," who jots down the minutes of the Student Council and the Girl Reserves. She has the same reputation when doling out equipment to the girls' basketball team. Her two chief pleasures are selecting the latest record and talking on the phone.

FRANCIS LEROY MANNING

Pure Oil Stock rises when "Bus" is around to boost the business, for the Frog Hollow boys are loyal patrons. After school he is on the job, pumping gas and fixing automobiles. After locking up the station he plays, chiefly by jitterbugging. His hobby is looking for new Tommy Dorsey records.

PAUL ALBERT MARRA

Shooting for a metal disk seems to be a habit with Paul, although sometimes it is the basketball hoop and sometimes it is the four-inch standard of golf. His upsetting antics in the state golf tournaments have given Glen-Nor rooters a great deal to read about.

JOHN JOSEPH McBREARTY, JR.

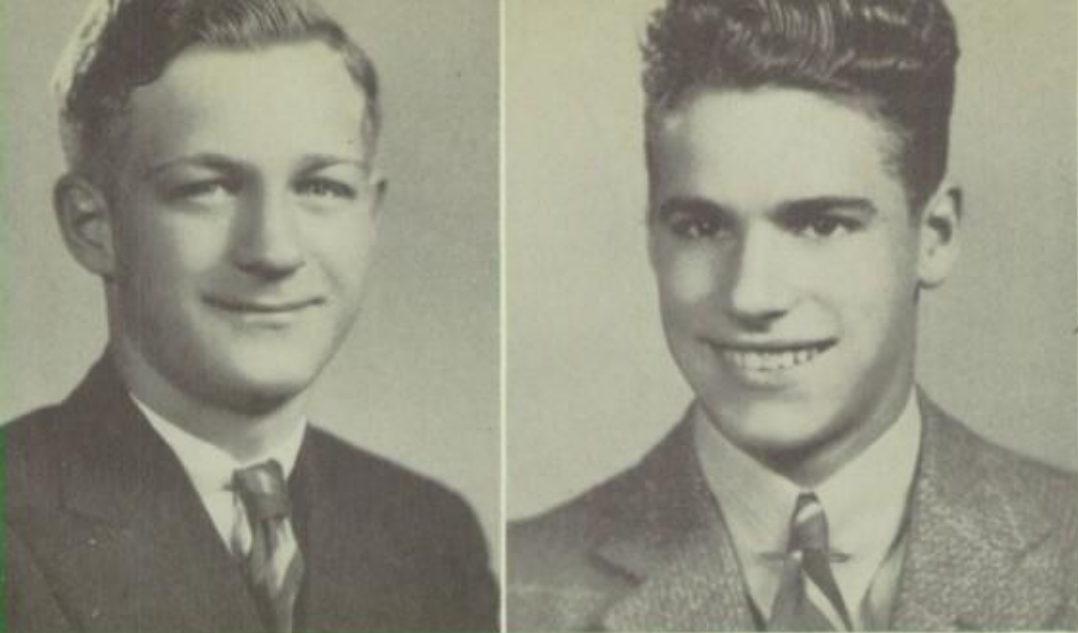

The locker room has been the scene of most of "Bucky's" activity, for he has spent much time in getting in and out of athletic uniforms. As center, he backed up the perfect football team. With winter he switched his allegiance to the basketball court.

HELEN ELIZABETH MEARNES

Always in good spirits, Helen keeps the fun alive; still she's the type to volunteer for special reports. Since jitterbugging has little appeal, she takes her dancing straight and slow. If all Helen's movie tickets were laid end to end, they would reach from Glen-Nor to the Manor!

*Best of luck

CLARENCE H. MENDENHALL, JR.

Good photography is "Mendy's" motto. Examples of his talent dot this book. Making strikes and spares at the Penn Rec bowling alleys occupies the time he can snatch from cowboying around the countryside. He is also a member of the Norwood Diner Fraternity.

ROBERT EDWARD MILLER

The success of the Glenolden Bee's basketball team hinges on "Bob's" deadly eye, but he wears his title of high scorer lightly. His financial problems have been solved by his connections with Sparks Candy Corporation. His partner in fun is "Walt."

ALICE ALMA MITCHELL

Here's a lucky girl who can flaunt her pretty curls at Ol' Man Rain. Since she doesn't have to be the slave of wave-set, she has time to devote to her sewing machine which is responsible for much of her wardrobe. Twice a week she refreshes herself by dancing.

ROBERT B. MONTGOMERY

Somewhere "Zum" once heard a good proverb: "You are never sorry for what you don't say." That is why he is so cheerful most of time; and that also explains his wisdom in choosing to be an audience. The Frog Hollow athletic teams know that he is a man of action.

GRACE FLORENCE MORRISON

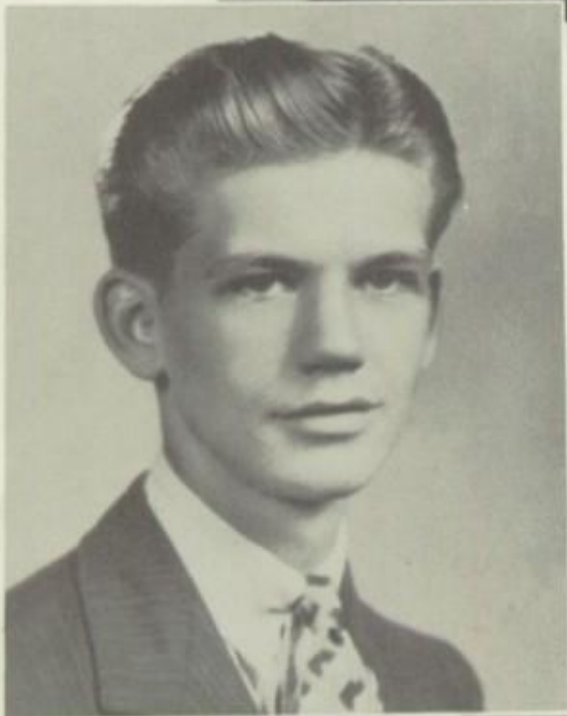

When "Gracie" isn't sighing at her screen idol, Errol Flynn, she is being sighed at by her admirers. Regularly she fore-sakes the Manor to go to sorority meeting. Unofficial estimates reveal that half the gum cluttering the waste baskets can be traced back to her.

J. Chiarolanza, A. Turner

WILLIAM AUGUSTUS MUNSON

A true protégé of Fred Astaire, "Bill" is the finest dancer in the senior class. Many a time the spirit of Glen-Nor has been raised by his fervent cheerleading. His experiences on the stage have gained him admirers; his encounters in the halls have been no less sociable.

EVELYN JEAN NORRIS

No languishing lady is this Jeanie with the light brown hair. At games she roots as loyally as if she were a veteran Glen-Norite. The truth is that she is a gift from Ohio. Her wearever smile fades in Latin class, where she wrestles with her verbs.

EARLE DENNIS OAKES

Although this artist has used his talents for many causes, his most discussed contributions have been the inspired cafeteria posters. "Baldy" is at best while slinging words in a P.O.D. argument, or while huddled over a drawing board.

FRANK EDMOND PAGENKEMPER

It's a paradox that one of the quietest class members should prove to be a specialist in noise. As if playing a saxophone weren't enough, "Peg" adopted the bass horn. As sound man for the senior play, he had a chance to create some weird effects. It's medicine for him!

MARGARET LILLIAN PARKER

A new hair-do is the most exciting thing in the world to this amateur coiffeuse. What is more, she'll generously show any aspirant how to have one. Her clever fingers express her original ideas, and presto! changeo! Because she likes to get around a bit, she prefers city life.

R. Cassell, C. Reese, P. Marra, M. Sayre, B. Munson, C. Bunty,
R. Miller, J. McBrearty, D. Reese

ELEANOR CLAIRE PARSONS

Forgetting to bring in her absence excuses and to pay library fines has failed to dampen Claire's blithe smile. She has gaily paddled her own canoe through school, and has never capsized! Inclined to be a bit quiet, she finds her voice in Senior Chorus and at games.

DORIS JEANNE PAULY

Stacks of work don't daunt Doris, for she is used to ploughing through reams of paper. As Mr. Schmidt's secretary, she has developed a secretarial sixth sense which should prove valuable. Fun is her line, too, whether she's winning at cards, or romancing in a book.

ROY HAMILTON PRETTYMAN, JR.

Managing the destinies of organizations is old stuff to "Jolie," who has been doing it so long that he has a formula. As chief executive of the class and of Hi-Y, he exercises his capacity for getting things done. When he gets home, he takes it out on the drums!

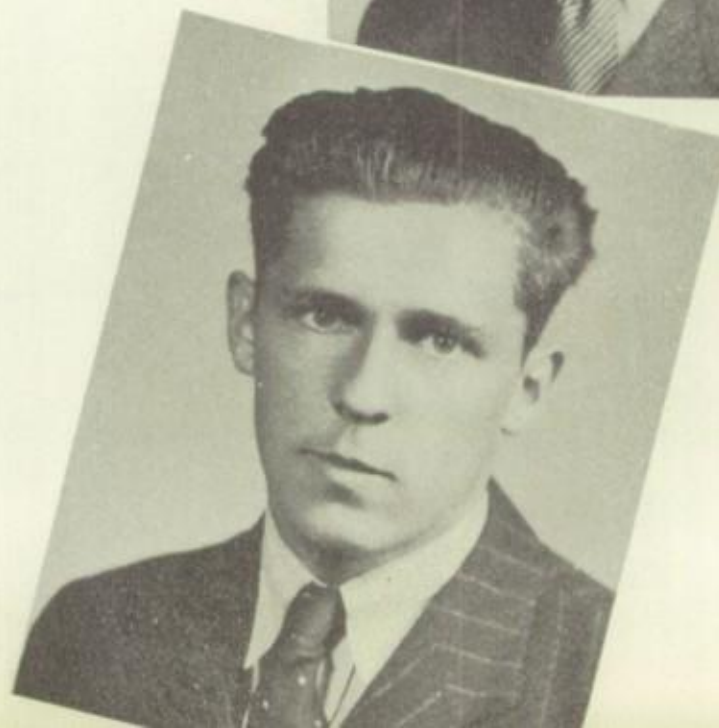

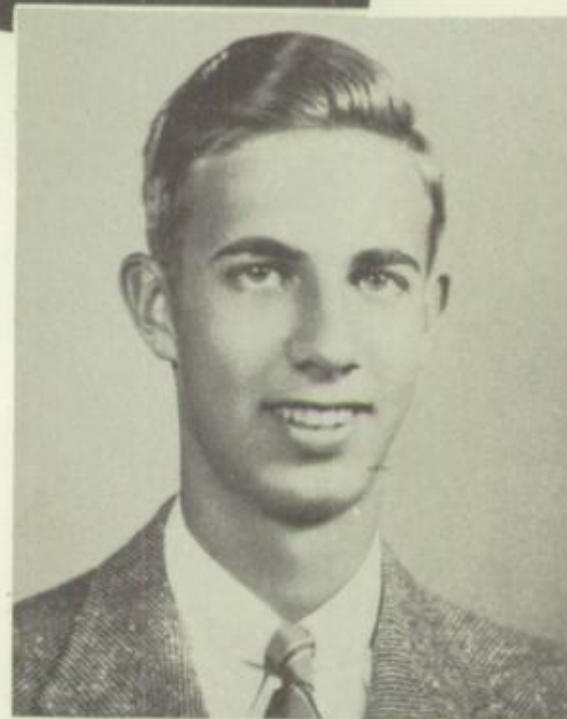

WILLIAM NORMAN PRITCHETT

Active and passive in athletics, "Biddy" can conjugate his sporting activities in both voices. After his football flashes with the Gophers became past history, he turned into a model for future basketball managers. Writing the sports section of the Annual was his final whirl at the game.

CLIFTON BONHAM REESE, JR.

Just mention airplanes and watch "Cliff" come to life. When not at the local airport, this enthusiast can be found at home poring through airplane magazines. In the summer he transfers his local address from the gridiron and cinder track to the nearest swimming pool.

DELBERT WATKINS REESE

Scranton's loss is Glen-Nor's gain. That refers to "Del," of course. Wherever there's a hot discussion going concerning the pros and cons of any sport, this coal-duster is sure to be in the midst, pleading his cause with an enormous number of facts and figures.

VIRA MAY REID

Badminton is Vira's pastime, for she likes to chase the shuttle cock from one side of the court to the other. As vice-president of the Typing Club she plays "Kitten on the Keys." Then comes evening, and her feet take up the rhythm of the day.

DORIS MARION REX

Bubbling over with laughter, "Jonnie" has breezed through school in a gust of good humor. A knack at photography and art landed her on the Annual Staff, which also discovered her domestic talents. She stoutly defends her original views.

DORIS RUTH RICKETTS

At girls' intramural games, Doris dashes hither and yon pursuing her managerial duties. At other times, peek in Room 18. There she sits, quietly racing over the keys of her favorite typewriter. When duty calls, she leaps to answer—even if it means selling candy at football games.

MINER COOK MERRILL SAYRE

Victory seems to be a part of this senior. A scoring ace both on the gridiron and on the basketball court, "Stoop" has risen to heights. The wisdom of a Solomon and the tact of a guidance counselor have combined to make him Room 16's chief executive and diplomat-at-large.

R. Brangan, C. Harmon, W. Barlow, J. McBrearty, D. Thomas

EDWARD HAROLD SHADEL

The truth of the matter is that "Eddie" has a way with him. Whether controlling the flow of traffic, leading the movement for 12 o'clock dances, or satisfying customers, he manages his public. Complaints on his routes are at a new low.

LILLIAN HELEN SHANE

When it comes to movie news, Helen is consulted as an oracle. Her bi-weekly sorority meetings are livened up by her hilarious chatter. The boys also appreciate her repartee. History is a pet abomination, but dates—well, that's a different matter.

FLORENCE JANE SIESS

The urge to become an expert secretary keeps "Flossie" pounding out practice sheets in Room 18. Girl's sports offer a perfect source of relaxation from her arduous stenographic duties. A "mysterious" ulterior motive draws her to all the athletic events.

DOROTHY LOUISE SIMON

Life began at sixteen for "Dottie" this year when she made the senior play. Being an old maid in "The Ghost Train" provided merriment for the audience—but "Dottie" deserted her role immediately, lest she be accused of taking it seriously. After school, page her in Room 16.

DOROTHY ELIZABETH SIMPSON

A clever dress designer, Bette has haunted Room 1, where she has created the latest models for her own use. Her dramatic talent won her the leads in the junior and senior plays. Senior write-ups for the Annual and Girl Reserves have kept up her production records.

K. Boekenkamp, R. Brangan, C. Harmon, A. Turner, C. Cary

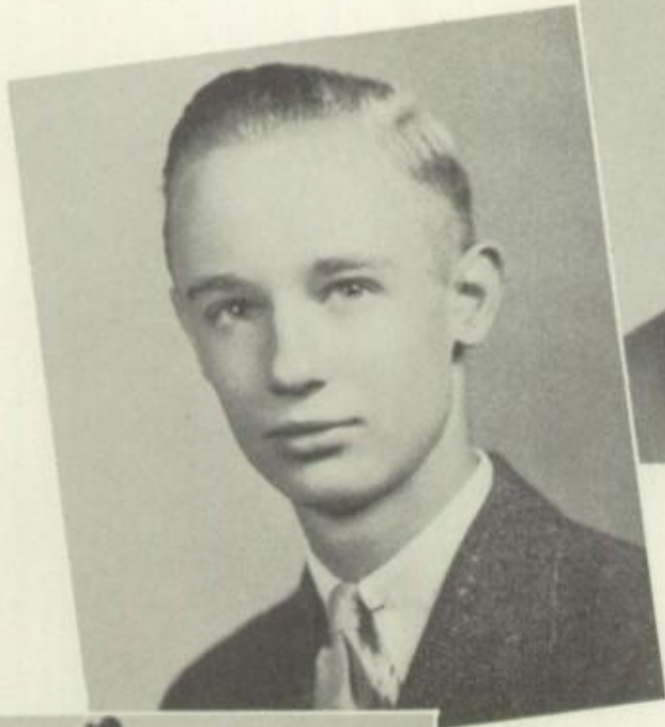

*Dear Ken,
Lots of luck to a sweet

Bette

MAURICE LEE SIPPLE

Holding the purse strings of the Student Council has been "Zeke's" duty and headache. A low pressure ticket salesman, he claims that he is always busy as a bee (drone). He became known as the champion roll-slicer of the class during the hot-dog season, when he took to the kitchen!

GEORGE ALLEN STARKWEATHER

Besides managing a paper route, hearing all the radio programs, reading the latest books, following the sports news, and playing a wicked game of tennis, "Starkey" has found time to win All-State Band honors with his clarinet. The National Honor Society snatched him up last year.

HELEN LOUISE STEAD

Running a race with herself, "Weesie" wins when she records the minutes of class meetings. She wins, too, whether she takes the hockey offensive or leads the gridiron cheers. The National Honor Society and the Girl Reserves have found that there is a lot in that little blonde head.

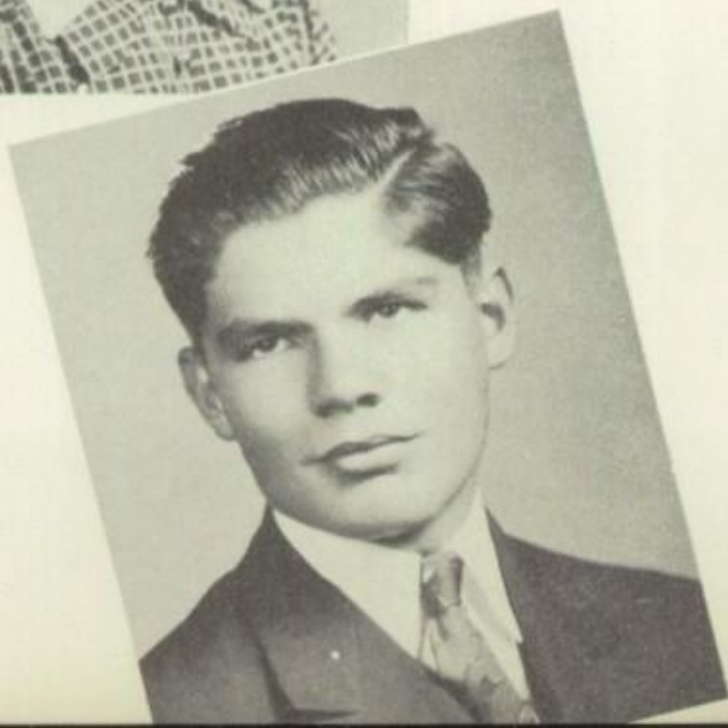

AGNES LEONORE STEGMULLER

Starring in Varsity hockey for three years and captaining the 1941 basketball team, "Aggie" has made a spectacular success in sports. Her good nature is habitual—so she is a good sport. Running attendance slips to the office has kept her in training.

DAVID THOMAS, JR.

Boats were Dave's first love, but now a certain ancient Ford has become a rival. Acting in plays, writing for the Annual, and playing basketball for the Shamrocks have kept Dave out of mischief. His soap box orations have identified him as the champion of school improvement.

B. Hines

GERALD CLIFFORD THOMAS

The distinction of being the roundest member of the football team goes to "Jerry." Although he is a rough and tough all-around athlete, the "Sea Pig" can transform himself into an excellent bard. His poems have been the life of many a party, and when he lifts his voice in song—!

ALDRED IRA TURNER

As a basketball player, "Audie" has carved himself a permanent place in the Glen-Nor Hall of Fame. His excellent playing has been excelled only by his coolness under fire. Directing his newsboys' activities has taken up the remaining portion of this business man's time.

WALTER EDGAR TURNER

Making his trombone "talk" is a hobby, which the Glen-Nor Band President converts into cash by playing at dances. By earning extra credits during the summer, "Walt" has put one over on the class of 1942. His habitual good humor is contagious.

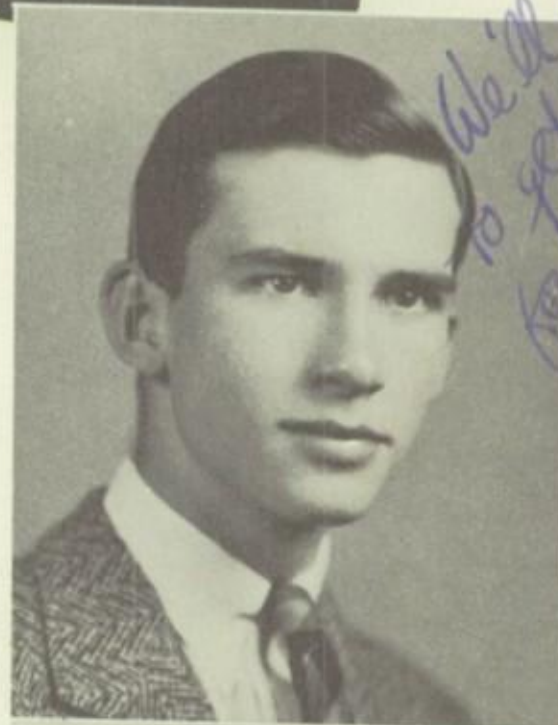

AUGUSTA ULMANN

Music-minded "Gus" enjoys Glee-Clubbing, playing Chopin's "Scherzo," and attending Youth Concerts. She forsakes the classics to watch the tickertape in the Thrift Bank and in the National Honor Society. Room 16's homeroom programs have been her headache.

GERALD JAMES WALKER

A constant migrator to the U-Need-a-Lunch, "Gerry" divides his time between devouring hamburgers and wearing down shoe leather on dance floors. Behind his smoke screen of fun-making, he has done much serious work at Glen-Nor, as witness his labors in the tin shop.

LEFT TO RIGHT (Sitting): C. Holstrom, R. Prettyman, E. Oakes, L. Stead.
STANDING: A. Stegmuller, Mr. Bamberger, G. Lake.

*We'll have

Walt*

THELMA FLORENCE WALKER

As movies are her first line of recreation, Thelma manages to be a first-nighter quite often. The sage of law class, she usually can answer the questions that baffle her floundering classmates. She cannot understand why people rush, for she takes her time and gets there, too

ROMAYNE EMMA WALZ

A program of activity keeps "Rowie" stepping. At 3 she retires to Room 19 to work in the Activities Bank; then she whisks to the game to sell candy, or to the stage to prompt the Senior Play. By 7 she's out in the Chevvy, flying down the Pike to the movies

JOHN ROBERT WARNER

Glen-Nor's contribution to the All-Chester Pike eleven, "Bulldog" has been the Varsity's workhorse for four years. During the summer this "Big Three" member keeps in condition by swimming at Ocean City, Maryland, and by playing softball for G. P.

THOMAS LEE WELFLEY

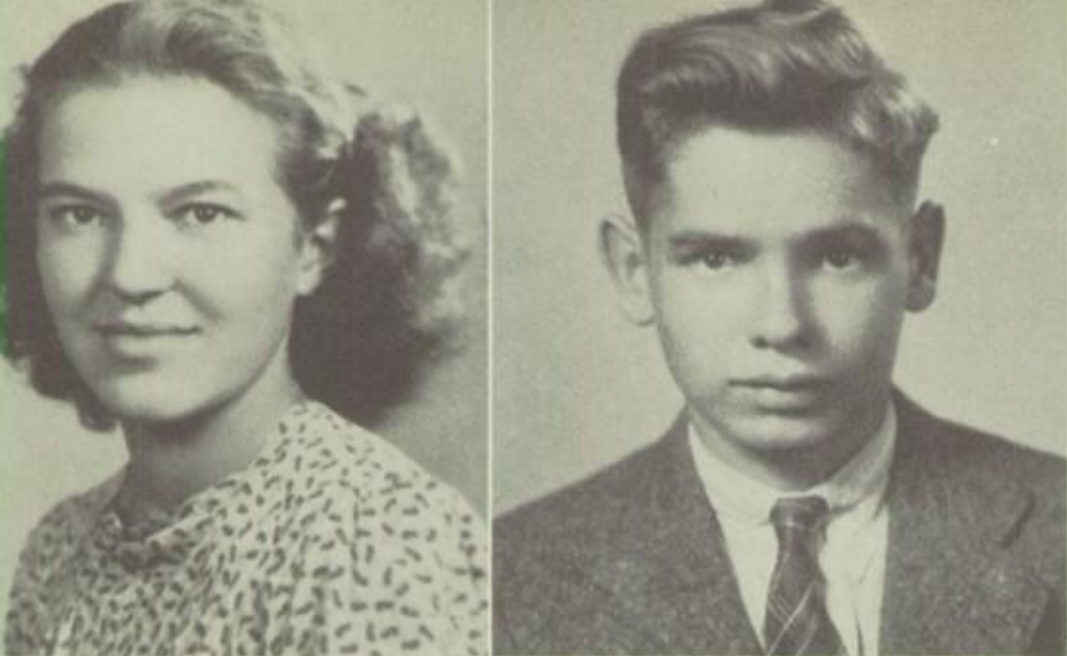

Wherever school pranks and fun are involved, "Well" is found. One of Glen-Nor's foremost Epicureans, he believes in making the most of the day, hour, minute, and second! Playing basketball with the Glenolden Reds rids him of most of his freak shots. Intramural sports absorb most of his extra school energy.

THOMAS MACCABE WERNER

For his years of servitude to the school's baby grand, "Tom" has been dubbed the class' pianist-laureate. Balancing the Annual's budget has been his concern after 3 P. M. Far removed from the genus of the ordinary bookworm, "Tom" has been a member of the National Honor Society for two years.

Basketball Practice

RUTH GERTRUDE WHEWELL

Winding up her energy daily at three, "Ruthie" actually runs to meet work. As custodian of the hockey and basketball teams, she used her time so well that she could plan her weekly homeroom programs and manage the Annual subscription campaign . . . a three-ring circus.

JOHN HOWARD WILEY

An old reliable, who more than once has tossed the final goal, Howard has added basketball letters to his alphabet. His athletic wars have been carried into the field of softball and football. A strong sense of duty sees that his homework arrives at the teachers' desks.

WILLIAM HURST WOODROW

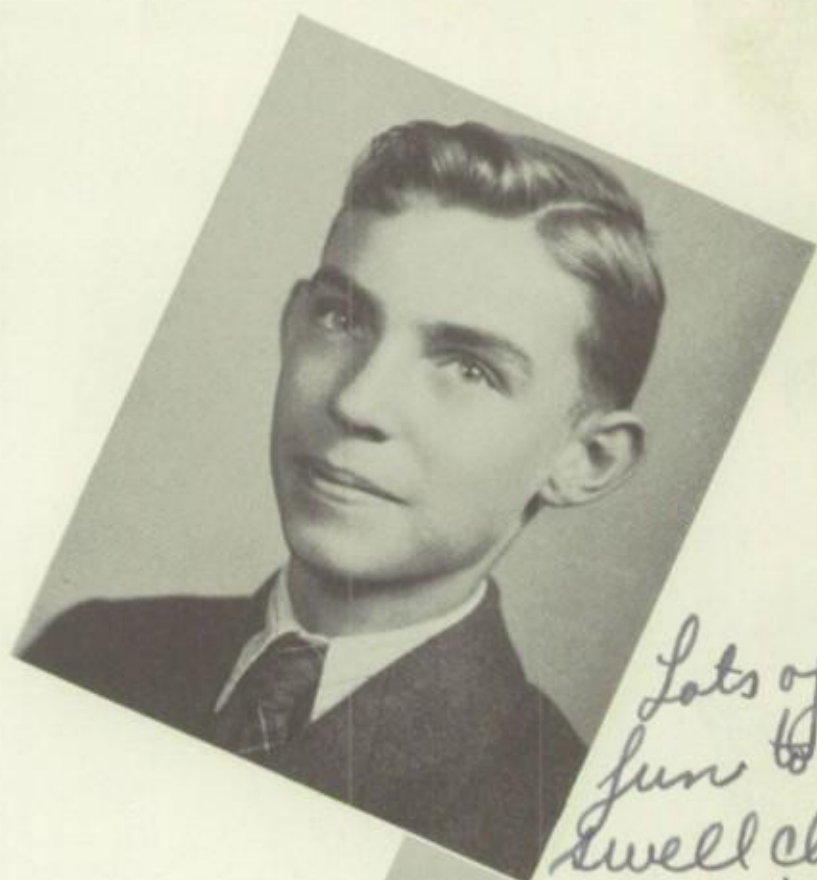

The look of contentment that "Woodie" wears while he is working in the physics laboratory, changes to an expression of ferocious joy when he cavorts on the gridiron for the far-famed Mold A. C. On the dance floor he proves that a straight line is often the bumpiest distance between two points.

ELIZABETH WOODRUFF

Personality plus makes Betty a busy girl. She has been a "must" for the junior and senior casts. Her original suggestions have often saved the day for the Annual staff or the Girl Reserves. In her ideas as well as in her clothes she dares to be different.

ELIZABETH PAMELA YEAGLEY

When Betty hears music, her bright eyes get even brighter. Whether dancing or playing the piano, she finds music a sure cure for the doldrums. Ordinarily her loquacious tongue slows up a bit in class, but her giggle never takes time out . . . for which blessing all are thankful.

*Lots of

Mr. Russell Bamberger

SPONSORS

"The light is still burning in Room 3, and it's after five o'clock," exclaims Nora to Glen. "I wonder who's in there."

"Mr. Bamberger's working with a special committee to put the final touches on the plans for the Senior Prom," Glen reveals. "He has been very busy lately."

"Yes," agrees Nora, "It's no joke being a class sponsor. First there was the spring senior trip; then came the Junior-Senior Prom; next were the measurements for the caps and gowns. The senior banquet and the graduation plans will be the next problems to work out."

"It must take a lot of patience and tact to be a sponsor," Glen continues. "The seniors owe a lot to Mr. Bamberger—I don't believe most realize how hard he has worked behind the scenes."

"By the way," interrupts Nora, "here is a letter from Mr. Tanger. See! It's postmarked Fort Sam Houston, Texas. He wishes to be remembered to all the members of the Class of 1941."

"No one will forget him," exclaims Glen. "He was sponsor for two and a half years, and he built a good foundation for the class."

"Aren't the seniors lucky?" Nora moves on. "It isn't every class that finds two such sponsors."

Mr. Frederick Tanger

"The Activity Program gives every pupil a chance to develop his interests and hobbies," remarks Glen.

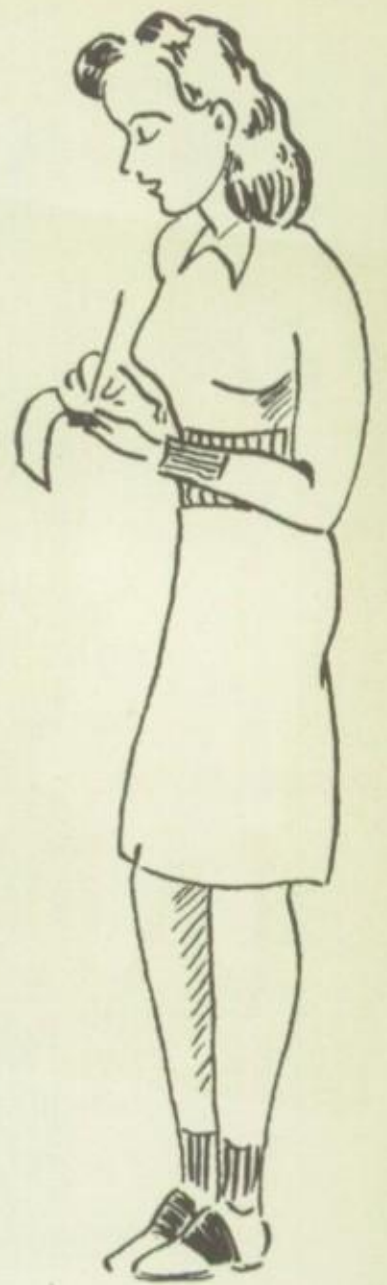

"Yes," agrees Nora. "Everybody mixes work with play. There are seventeen clubs in the junior high school alone! The twelve senior high clubs cover a range of interests from accounting to music."

"Every pupil has the opportunity to choose one club, which meets once every other week in most cases. Those who prefer work periods may substitute them. As no one is compelled to join a club, the groups are composed of lively and enthusiastic members," Glen continues.

"Let's visit some of them," suggests Nora.

"This is the home of the GLEN-NOR ANNUAL," explains Glen as Nora peeks into Room 16.

"Those journalists making up the ANNUAL certainly have a job on their hands," continues Glen. "Everything must be original. Besides selecting a theme, the staff must plan every page of the book, must write the assignments, and must accumulate enough money to pay the bills. The subscription drive has hit a new high this year. Perhaps the Indian archer in the cafeteria had something to do with that."

"But it isn't all work," interrupts Nora. "Those writers can cook, too. The dinners and picnics prepared by the staff were hilarious. Then there have been the thrilling press conferences."

"At the end of the year the headaches are entirely forgotten as an enthusiastic school reads the ANNUAL," Glen adds hastily. "The honors that come in from press conferences encourage the staff to keep improving the book, too."

"Come on, Glen. Don't start that story," Nora moves on.

"The Hi-Y is a junior branch of the Y.M.C.A.," boasts Glen. "It trains its members in maintaining high ideals in all phases of life."

"I imagine the boys do about the same things as the Girl Reserves," remarks Nora.

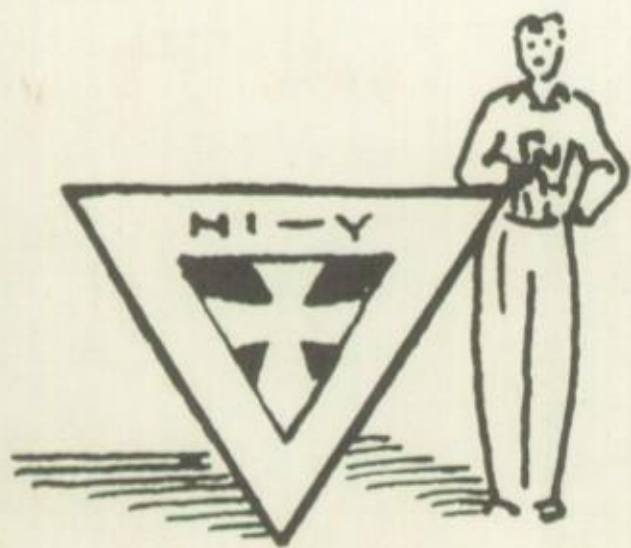

"Yes," agrees Glen, "both their programs emphasize knowledge, health, worship, and service. Once a month the boys have gym night; the competition is especially keen in basketball games. The boys sponsor dances and have parties, too."

"What's that noise?" asks Nora.

"You ought to recognize the sound of a Girl Reserve meeting," teases Glen.

"We do a lot of work anyway," Nora stoutly defends. "That 'Aid to Britain' campaign and the canned goods drive which you Hi-Y boys helped us sponsor were great successes. Our regular meetings which feature speakers, panel discussions, and movies are helpful, too. We even have a humming Junior Girl Reserves organization—you should see all the work those girls do."

"Let's call it quits," Glen suggests. "After all I do think that both the Hi-Y and the Girl Reserves are indispensable organizations."

 "In this case the proof is in the hearing."

"The best thing about the music department is the encouragement that Mr. Grim gives to every player. Even the beginners feel important," observes Nora.

"They are," Glen affirms, "for they are not only the present, but the musical future of Glen-Nor."

Standing: B. Leach, Mr. Macadam, L. Torok.

"The school bank is located in Room 19, where Miss Armagost can keep an eye on it," Nora urges Glen to stop. "This is our Wall Street."

"Let me explain this—it's a man's job," pleads Glen.

"How do you get that way? The girls seems to be doing pretty well with it this year."

Taking a deep breath, Glen rushes on. "More money goes through the Activities Bank in the course of one year than any other organization in the school, because all activities must deposit their funds at this central place. When paying bills, pupils withdraw their money here, also. Deposit slips and checks are standard equipment; there is even a little cash for sudden demands. All the bookkeeping and work is done by students, but the sponsor writes out the checks."

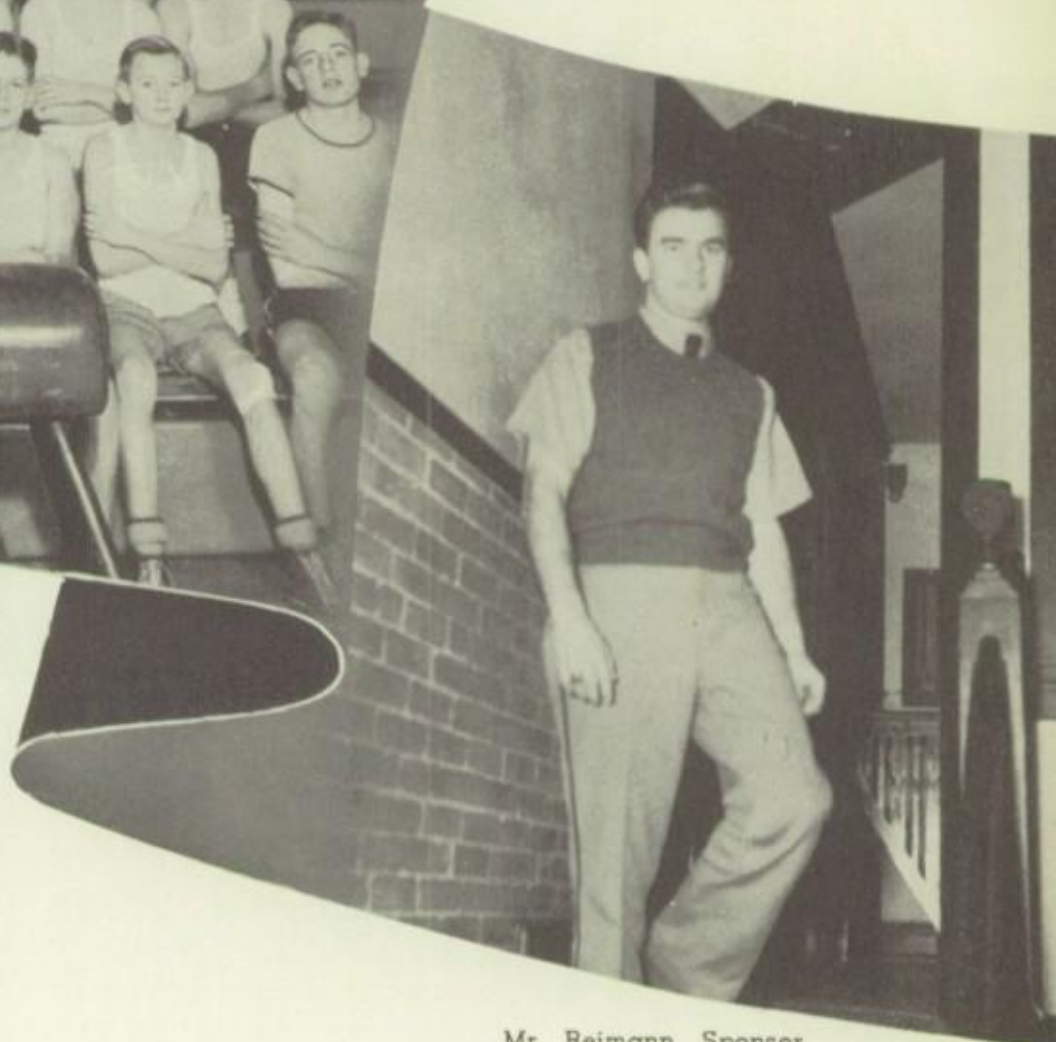

"The Thrift Bank is different," interpolates Nora. "In order to make the pupils thrift-conscious, the privilege of making deposits in a local bank is offered each Friday. The rivalry between the homerooms is extremely keen; challenges and contests keep the pennies rolling right over to Room 23."

"Over there the money is counted by the Thrift Bank Club members. Mr. Macadam sees that the arithmetic is correct. Tabulations are made and every one is given credit for his weekly thrift. The individual and homeroom winners are notified on the Daily Bulletin."

"There's nothing like a bank account," sighs Glen.

"Oh, look at their muscles," Nora and Glen stop to watch the members of the BOYS' GYM CLUB, who are learning tricks on the parallel bars, the side horse, and the spring board. "They act as if they like it."

"They should," observes Glen, "for they decide on their own activities. Basketball, softball, and volleyball are favorite sports."

"Because this is such a large group, the boys are divided into four squads, with leaders for each," Nora explains. "They seem to be doing well with the apparatus today."

"They like the parallel bars, and are already planning to attend the Penn and Temple meets, where they will see fine exhibitions of skill on the bars."

"That sounds exciting," Nora sighs. "I wish I were a boy!"

"Here's one club that can always be depended upon in emergencies," Glen proudly asserts.

"The members of the Stage Crew are the most wide-awake workers in school," affirms Nora. "They are directly responsible for assembly programs, and they do everything from working the curtains to taking the speakers to the train."

"Always on the lookout for something new, they introduced the general programs held in the gym. These have been very successful," continues Glen.

"Everybody appreciates quality," retorts Nora.

"Let's visit the Auto-Mechanics and Auto-driving Club," suggests Nora as the twins stroll leisurely down the hall.

"Clubs," contradicts Glen. "The Auto-Mechanics and Driving Clubs are in reality two different activities. The Auto-Mechanics Club has taken up the intricate parts of the automobile. The boys study Diesel engines, electricity, chemistry, and metallurgy, as they affect the mechanics of a car. Field trips to the Ford Plant have given practical knowledge."

"The Auto Driving Club," interrupts Nora, "must study just the automobile parts that are of interest to the driver, then."

"Of course," Glen agrees. "This means that these boys study auto parts and the different operations of the motor. They also study 'The Digest of the Vehicle Code of Pennsylvania' and the 'Students' Manual'."

"These clubs must be very practical," comments Nora.

"Yes. The members now are taking up the problems facing a learner when he takes his driver's test."

"They'll all pass the first time," prophesies Nora.

Mr. Earley, Miss Seitz.

"Let's follow the JUNIOR MESSENGER from Room 10 to Room 18," suggests Nora.

"Down here the staff prepares the copy. When Miss Seitz approves the editing, the material is sent to the TYPING CLUB," Glen explains. "Soon the long awaited issue is ready for distribution."

"It's free to junior high pupils," Nora continues, "and do they like their magazine!"

"Between issues Mr. Earley teaches the typists all sorts of fancy typing."

"That's cooperation. Let's go on." The twins pocket a sample copy.

"Ugh, smell the chemicals," sniffs Nora as the twins pass Room 3.

"Yes," Glen sputters, "this is the meeting place of the Chemistry Club. These amateur chemists have a lot of fun studying the elements, learning to take care of equipment, and practicing professional behavior."

"They are divided into two groups," adds Nora, "a senior and a junior group. The junior group learns how to conduct simple experiments, while the seniors advance into more difficult work. Testing chemical products is a favorite activity with both groups."

"I think that would be more fun than work," says Glen as he picks up a test tube. "I think I'll take chemistry next year."

"What a thrilling job it is to build model airplanes," sighs Nora as the twins watch the AEROPLANE CLUB members at work.

"It's very beneficial to the air-minded boy though," exclaims Glen. "He learns the technical names of airplane parts, and he can identify the various models."

"How do they build the airplanes," asks Nora.

"Oh, I know," boasts Glen. "Each member carefully follows every detail of his blueprint as he works on his model. After the structure is finished, he delicately places the paper on the framework. That's a ticklish job."

"I know the rest," exclaims the triumphant Nora. "After the finishing touches have been added, the model is displayed before the club. Criticism and praise are equally distributed by the frank club members."

"It isn't surprising that this is a popular club. Gee, I'd like to join it myself," says Glen as he signals Nora to move on.

"Election to the NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY is the highest honor that any pupil can attain," Glen and Nora chime together. "As only fifteen per cent of the senior class and five per cent of the junior class can be elected by the faculty, membership really means something."

"Scholarship, service, leadership, and character are the standards which determine the faculty's choice," Nora eagerly explains.

"That's why the Society is respected by the teachers, pupils, and the community," Glen concludes. "Its emphasis is on the all-around person."

"Don't forget QUILL AND SCROLL," Nora remarks anxiously.

"I should say not," Glen promises, "for it honors those who have excelled in journalism. I'm glad that those who slave silently have some recognition."

"I, too," Nora grows enthusiastic. "I've certainly agonized over this ANNUAL."

"We've had a very thrilling sports season," Nora announces as the twins near the athletic field.

"The whole sports program is planned by the A.A. Council," explains Glen. "It arranges the intramural contests; sponsors ticket campaigns; secures officials and arranges transportation for all games; maintains the field and equipment; and finances the awards of emblems, letters, and charms."

"The cheerleaders are important, too," interposes Nora. "They have certainly skyrocketed the enthusiasm of the student body this year."

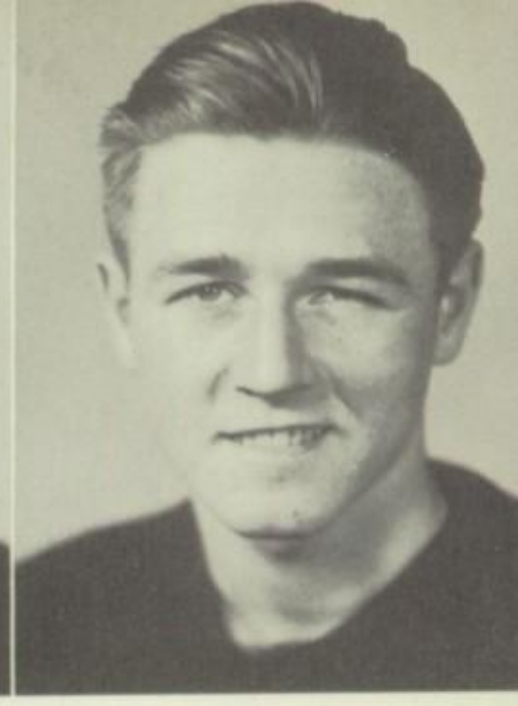

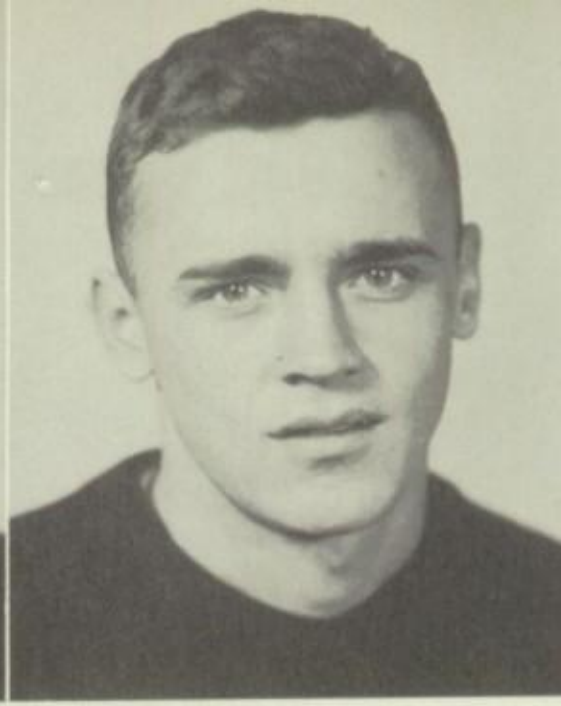

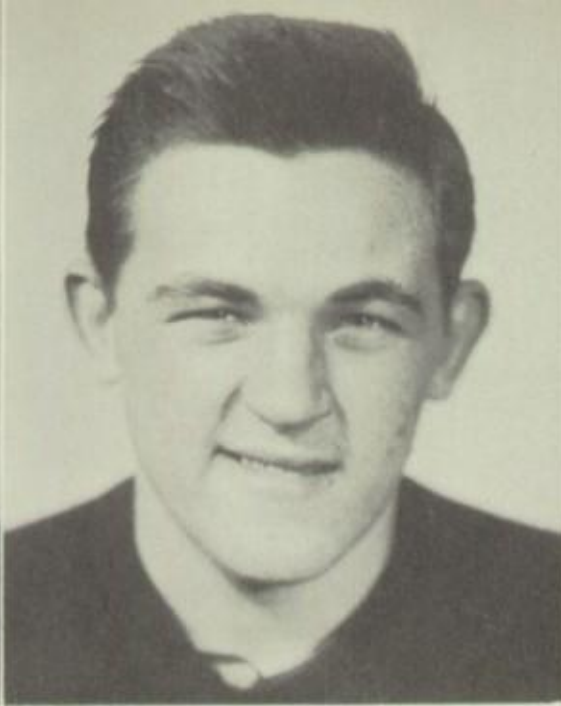

"Leading cheers is an athletic accomplishment, too," jokes Glen. "The cheerleaders are gymnasts."

"Let's go with a 'Glen-Nor Spell-Out'." Nora jackknifes into position.

"Undefeated, untied, and unscored upon," chorus the twins as they approach the Football Hall of Fame.

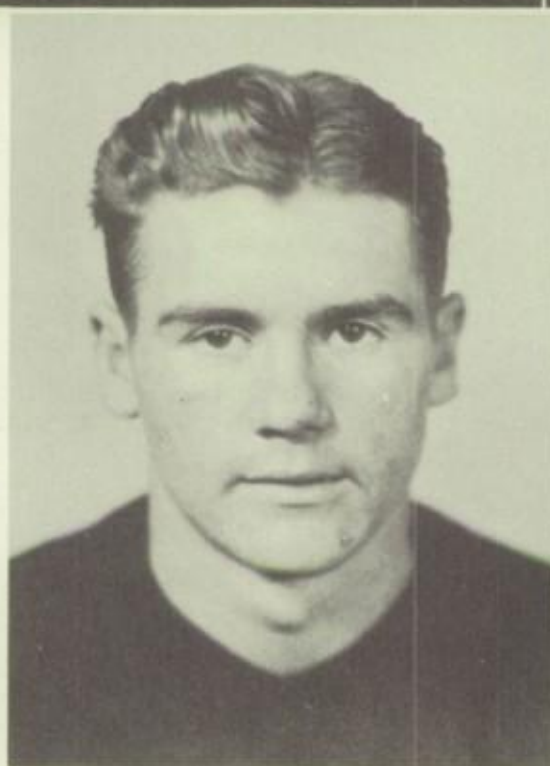

"Never in the past twenty-seven years has such an achievement been recorded in the gridiron annals of Delaware County," announces Glen with pardonable pride. "With only four returning lettermen Coach Hoffman molded the finest team in the history of the school."

"Who can ever forget Charley Bunty's running attack?" sighs Nora. "Or the passing of Dave Starr, Miner Sayre and Gordon Atherholt; Bill Houtz's blocking; the sterling line play of Barr, McBrearty, Mark, Kugler, and Soprano; and the cool steadiness of Captain Charlie Harmon?"

"The Glen-Nor Basketeers turned in a fine record this year," too," Glen relates. "Victorious in thirteen out of sixteen contests, the Indians proved to be a formidable club.

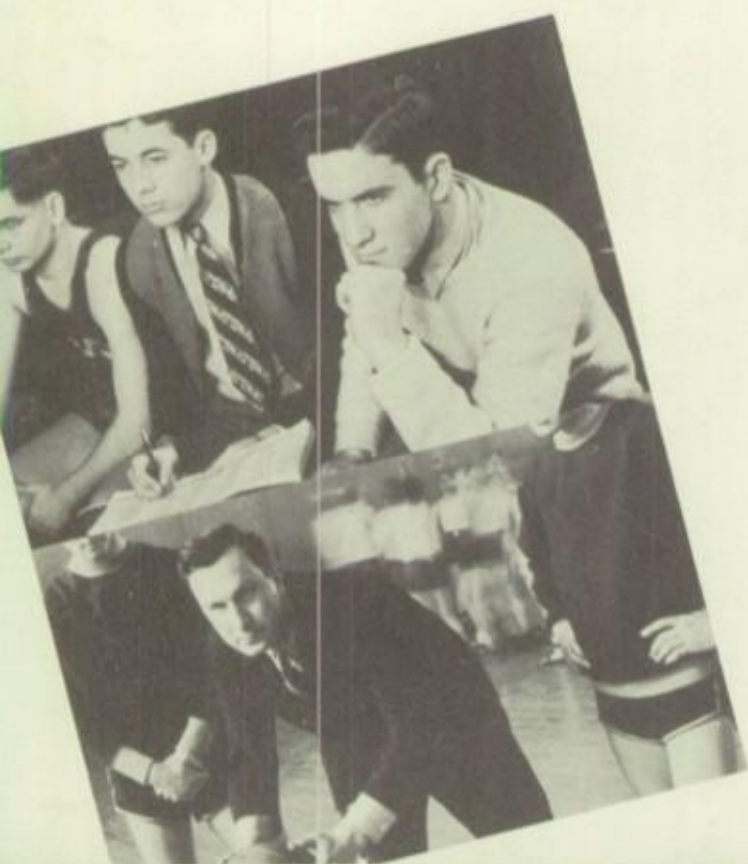

"Coach Yetter and Co-Captains Miner Sayre and Audie Turner can be proud of this season's work. Undefeated until they met Eddystone, the Braves met another heartbreaker at Ridley Township. A fine game provided lots of thrills for the spectators, as this was the battle for Section IV honors."

Totalling 715 points to their opponents' 282, they scored a fine average per game. Their greatest conquest was over Swarthmore, and their only defeat came when they were felled by Chester in the title play-off."

"The girls have turned in a good basketball record, too," observes Glen as the twins move over to the girls' side of the gym. "Coach Hendricks must feel good about it."

"Five wins, one tie, and two losses," Nora counts the games on her fingers. "The best of it is that the girls outscored their opponents by throwing the ball through the hoop for 266 points to their opponents' 191."

"Agnes Stegmuller made a good captain, didn't she? I heard that Nada Beers was high scorer with 119 points, and that Alice Mullen and Helen Decker were next," offers Glen.

"Yes, that's so. Those girls have been playing for some time, too. It's a good thing to start young. The Jayvees have done well this year, too," Nora muses.

"Six wins, one tie, and one loss," offers Glen again. "Coach Tobin must be proud of her fledglings."

"You are certainly up on statistics," Nora returns. "I happen to know that Kathleen White was high scorer, and that Ruth Decker was runner-up."

"You get around and hear things, too," remarks Glen.

LEFT TO RIGHT: A. Stegmuller, E. Piasecki, M. E. Light, R. Whewell, U. Mallgrave

Mr. Royer, T. Marra, E. Ellis, H. Massey, H. Rice, H. Wiley, P. Marra

"What are the prospects in golf?" Nora inquires as the twins approach the links.

"Excellent," comes Glen's optimistic reply. "Three experts from last year's team are returning. Number 1 and Number 2 positions will be held down by the famous Marra brothers, Paul and Tony. Howard Wiley is slated for Number 3."

"I heard that some new recruits have come out for golf."

"Yes," Glen explains. "Jake Ellis, Harold Rice, and Harold Massey will fill out the club. Coach Royer is looking forward to a good season, but he is keeping his eye on Clifton Heights and Ridley Township, which have been keen rivals."

"I think I'll see some golf matches this year," Nora resolves as the twins move on over the green.

G. Starkweather, A. McVicar

C. Brown, A. McVicar, Mr. Reimann, G. Starkweather, B. Leech, E. Oakes

E. Oakes, A. McVicar, C. Brown

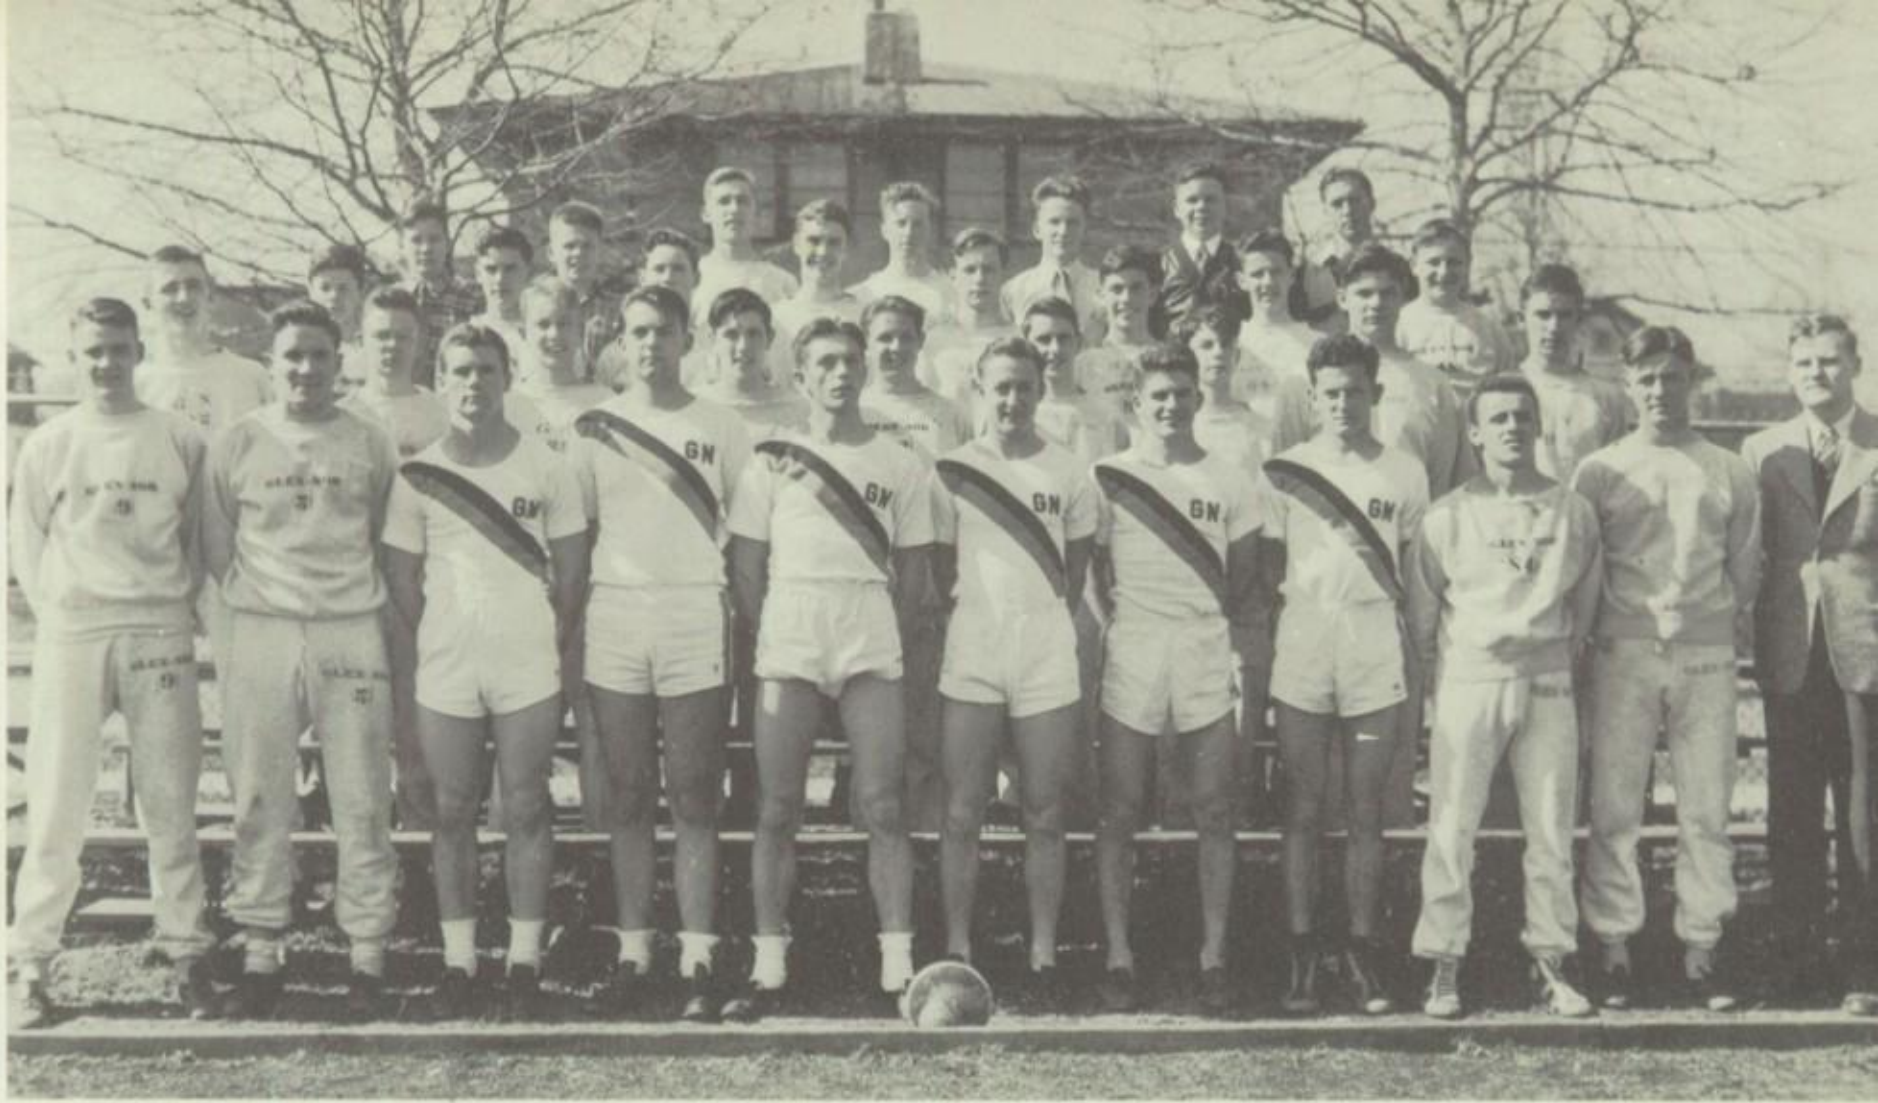

"What is the outlook for the tennis team?" Nora glances admiringly toward the courts.
 "Good," Glen's emphatic voice carries no doubt. "The boys were third in the league last year and they have every chance of bettering that record now. Five lettermen are re-turning this year, and the two new senior candidates, Bill Pritchitt and Jack Brooks, are strong additions!"
 "I heard that Swarthmore will provide the big opposition," Nora contributes.

"Yes, it has held the championship for the past four years. It's time for somebody to speak his piece. The other games scheduled are with Yeadon, Ridley Park, Nether Providence, and Eddystone."

"Coach Reiman and Captain Al McVicar are enthusiastic about the season. I'm glad to get the viewpoint of a spectator. Thanks." Nora moves over to watch the practice.

C. Brown, B. Leech

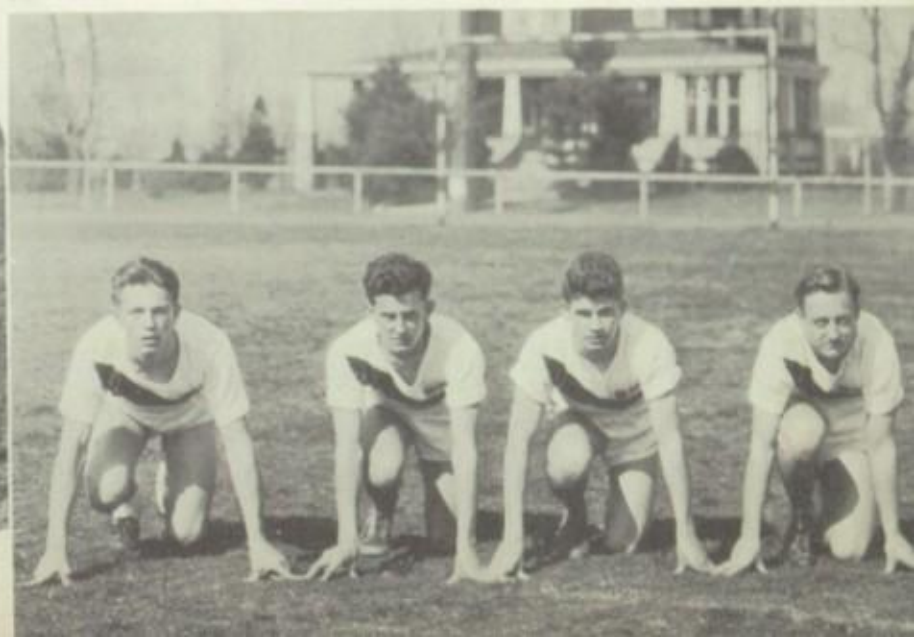

"Who's who in track?" Nora inquires as the twins approach the cinder path.

"Coach Yetter told me that 'Charley' Bunty and Jack Fahey supply the speed," explains Glen. "The longer events will be taken care of by Ed Shadel, Ed Reddington, Bob Montgomery, and Dick Gibbons. The job of hurdling will belong to the Holmes brothers and Frank Worrsum.

"The Indians will be as strong as ever in field events, as practically all of last year's team will return. John Kugler (a double decoration winner), Charles Harmon, and Jim Clark are the 'bamboo clearers.' Gordon Lake, Hilyard Barr, Jack Eiserman, and Dave Thomas will handle the weights. Johnny Soprano, a medal winner, and Gordon Atherholt will wield the javelin."

"Sounds good," Nora approves, "but it looks like a lot of work in the name of fun."

"That certainly was a garrison finish," exclaims Glen, as he and his twin leave the gym. "Imagine, the 7th grade was behind 13-7, and then came on to beat the 8th grade 16-14."

"Yes," agrees Nora, "7B certainly made an exciting finish of it. In spite of the size of the players, the game was almost as interesting as the senior finals last week."

"I remember that," replies Glen. "That was a close contest even though the final score was 15-7. Jack Warner and his Slippery Rock State Teachers Team of Barlow, Buntz, Ingram, Miller, and Cary had quite a fight on their hands. Bill McMaster and his Texas Christian Crew were no set-ups."

"The fellows that play volley-ball have it easy compared with the basket-ball players," ventures Nora. "It was just like an ice-box outside the day of the play-offs."

"I'll agree with you there," returns Glen. "In spite of the frigid weather, though, Mullen's Room 12 crew and Joe Makatche's bunch of Temple players were clicking perfectly. Joe, Baldy Oakes, Al Ingram, Walt Rankin, and Bucky Austin must have had a hard time keeping the cold off and their shots in at the same time."

"That proves something," concludes Nora. "Their standing off of a 20 degree temperature must mean that intra-mural sports are still playing a large and successful part in Glen-Nor athletics."

"What a lovely trophy," comments Nora as the twins pause to look at the basket-ball statuette won by the Room 12 girls in intramural competition.

"Yes," agrees Glen. "Room 12 also won the volleyball junior high championship. Their teams included: N. Ault, M. Hedden, M. Meany, R. Wolfe, H. Ryan, D. A. Greer, and F. Horner."

"The senior high champions in volleyball had a perfect score. Why don't you congratulate them when you see them?" suggests Nora. "You know A. Hines, E. Piasecki, L. Torok, C. Sayre, J. Brock, L. Averill, P. Cronk, E. Sparks, and B. Taft."

"That's a good idea," acquiesces Glen pleasantly. "I'll include Alice Mullen's championship basketball outfit: M. Hirst, B. M. Barlow, L. Dempsey, E. Sparks, J. A. Bailor, E. Brown, B. Chesnutt and M. Bonawitz."

"That's enough girls for you," laughs Nora. "What I want to know is who is behind all this?"

"Clifford Brown and Doris Ricketts are the student managers," explains Glen, "but all this fun is made possible by Miss Seitz, Miss Tobin, Miss Hendricks, Mr. Hoffman, Mr. Keen and Mr. Reimann."

"School has been a lot of fun," sighs Nora regretfully as the twins go down the steps to the front door. "I hate to leave it."

"So do I," echoes her twin. "I thank my lucky stars that we have had the chance to show everyone what Glen-Nor is like. I'm certainly grateful to all who have made this book possible."

"Everyone has cooperated so well," rejoins Nora. "Hollander and Feldman's staff have been patience itself in taking the pictures. Mr. Kamp and Mr. Aderholt of the Campus Publishing Company have been constant advisers on all the details of this new offset process."

"It's been a lot of fun," Glen pauses to look back briefly.

"Good-bye till 1942," sings out Nora gayly, as the twins scamper down the driveway.
